

Police Said Not Harassing Drinkers

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

An investigation into the police department's handling of driving while intoxicated (DWI) arrest procedures concludes that Lincoln's men in blue are not harassing the drinking public.

Attorney James Bruckner, who made the investigation, said that while the city basically has an "excellent" police force, several rigidly enforced rules should be relaxed. Instead of detaining people in jail for hours, most people could be released to friends or family, he said.

The police also should give people arrested for DWI up to 30 minutes to contact an attorney before they're required to give a sample of their blood, breath or urine.

The police should not automatically have the person's car towed to police parking lots, Bruckner said.

The investigation was called for by the City Council following a number of charges leveled by citizens that the department has been harassing Lincoln drivers and tavern owners and depriving citizens of their constitutional rights.

The report, released to the council Friday, is based on testimony from 126 people and dozens of police officers.

Investigation revealed some officers have been overzealous in their enforcement of the DWI laws, Bruckner said. There have been no cases of brutality, however, either on the streets or in the jail.

While police are supposed to have reasonable grounds for stopping potential DWI offenders, Bruckner said, some "bad arrests" have been made. As a result, he is recommending that such stoppings and bad arrests be discouraged by appropriate disciplinary action.

Bruckner said citizens should be advised that once they have given a sample of their blood, breath or urine, they have the right to have a confirming test performed by their own physician, at their own expense.

Bruckner also proposes that the police modify their policy of jailing all people arrested on drunk charges for four hours or more.

The police have the statutory authority to release people to friends or family, Bruckner said, and he suggested that the police carry out "the intent of the law."

Lower Federal Tax Won't Boost State's

By The Associated Press

The federal income tax reduction will not force an additional increase in the Nebraska state income tax rate, State Tax Commissioner William E. Peters said Friday.

He said the reduction in federal taxes for 1975 "will have minimal effect on the Nebraska tax structure."

But Peters said that to "maintain the solvency of the state" . . . the Legislature should approve Gov. J. J. Exon's proposal to raise state income taxes this year from 10 to 13% of federal income tax obligation.

There had been questions about whether the announced federal tax cut would force the state income tax even higher than Exon had suggested.

"The Nebraska withholding rate will probably have to be increased because of reductions in federal withholding rates being made to accommodate federal credit items which do not affect the Nebraska tax liability," Peters said.

Peters said the bulk of federal tax reductions involve credit provisions "which do not affect Nebraska income tax liability."

"Our preliminary estimates are that the 1975 state income tax liability will be lowered by about $2 million," Peters said.

"The overall financial impact on the state treasury will probably be negligible as increased purchasing power should generate additional sales tax collections to offset the reduction in income tax receipts," Peters said.

Peters had said earlier that no state tax would be levied against federal tax rebates.

$50 Checks To Be Mailed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government announced Friday it will begin mailing out $50 checks early next month to Social Security recipients under the tax cut law signed by President Ford last month.

The Treasury Department said the one-time payments are expected to be distributed by about June 20.

Treasury cautioned that the checks will be going out at about the same time tax rebate checks will be mailed, so Social Security "recipients should not be concerned, therefore, if their checks do not arrive during the latter part of May or early June."

Treasury did advise recipients, however, to contact officials if they don't receive a check by June 30.

Treasury officials said that individuals who receive benefits under more than one of the programs will still receive only $50. Recipients who also pay taxes will be entitled to a tax rebate in addition to the $50 payment.

Youth in Action Harper To Have Role Of Bad Guy

By PATTY BEUTLER

Mark Harper wants to be a bad guy.

He's going to get his chance this summer when he plays the villainous hypocrite in Moliere's "Tartuffe," the first production of the newly-formed Lincoln Public School Repertory Theater.

"I've always been cast in goody-goody roles," this young student of the theater explained.

As a mean guy, he hopes he can get some of his aggressions out on stage. "I always have so much energy during the plays," he added.

A senior at Pius X High School, Mark has made it to center stage several times in school plays.

But a real moment of triumph for this 18-year-old came during the spring play last year when the auditorium lights went out during the finale.

As narrator he had been controlling the action of the play. So when the lights failed, Mark momentarily "hung up my costume" and called both the audience and cast to order.

The play resumed in total darkness and was for Mark "the nearest experience I've had in drama."

Mark's range of roles has been varied.

He's been a mad doctor, with a green grease paint face and wildly teased hair, as well as "Slightly Soiled," a timid follower of Peter Pan, in Never-Never Land.

And then there was the school play in which his younger, but taller, brother was cast as his father.

Pantomime was one of Mark's specialties until the small group of performers at Pius broke up last year and was not reorganized.

Technical Aspects With several stage performances now under his belt — including "Trudy and the Minstrel" at the Community Playhouse — Mark is trying to concentrate on the technical aspects of body movements in his acting.

Local productions and performances by some of the professional acting companies which have visited Nebraska recently are lessons for this eager-to-learn thespian.

"I go and I find out how much I have to learn, how much I don't know," Mark sighed.

"But you go home with a good inspiration," he admitted.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Royce Harper, 934 S. 33, Mark is looking forward to the challenge of his role in "Tartuffe."

Americans Airlifted Out Of Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The United States closed its Cambodian Embassy early Saturday and mounted an emergency airlift of armed helicopters to fly the few remaining Americans still in Phnom Penh out of the besieged city.

U.S. Marines who flew into Phnom Penh aboard the helicopters to maintain order and protect the evacuees stood around the loading area near the U.S. embassy, armed with M16 rifles and grenade launchers.

They barred a crowd of curious Cambodians from approaching the helicopters as the evacuation started. No incidents were reported.

U.S. warplanes from the carrier Okinawa and bases in neighboring Thailand flew protective cover for the evacuation.

About an hour after the evacuation began U.S. Defense Department spokesmen in Saigon said five Marine helicopters had taken out 199 civilians, including some 50 members of the embassy staff and newsmen.

U.S. warplanes and helicopters left Thai bases early Saturday for Phnom Penh to help evacuate American citizens and other foreigners out of the encircled Cambodian capital, Thai military sources said.

Cambodians who had earlier escaped to Thailand deluged the Associated Press office in Bangkok asking for help in communicating with relatives in Phnom Penh. All wanted to urge relatives to leave Cambodia as soon as possible.

The Thai government has agreed to allow Cambodians and other nationals fleeing the country to temporarily stay in Thailand.

Associated Press correspondents Matt Franjola and Denis Gray reported that the city was calm as they drove to the embassy to be evacuated, but government artillery could be heard firing on the outer edges of the capital.

In Saigon, American sources said the U.S.-financed shuttle of cargo planes carrying rice and ammunition into Phnom Penh has been suspended and with no Americans now in the city they didn't know if it would be resumed. The airlift was the only way to resupply the capital after Khmer Rouge insurgents cut all overland and water routes.

Signalling U.S. abandonment of the Southeast Asian nation, State Department spokesman Robert Anderson said Friday night: "We regret this development because of its obvious implication for the government of the Khmer Republic."

The helicopters, which deposited more than 180 Marines before picking up the civilians, flew the evacuees to the aircraft carriers Okinawa and Hancock in the Gulf of Thailand, sources said.

There was no interference or resistance from the Khmer Rouge rebels, the sources said.

Anderson's statement also said: "This evacuation is taking place in an effort to ensure the safety of U.S. citizens in Cambodia."

The statement went on to say that the evacuation was being carried out by U.S. military helicopters, with tactical aircraft in the vicinity "in the event they are needed."

According to the State Department, "there is no intention to use force but if necessary it will be applied only to protect the lives of evacuees."

In addition to the Americans, the State Department added that "to the extent we have the capability in the airlift we are also undertaking to evacuate third-country nationals . . . as well as Cambodian employees of the U.S. mission and their families, and as many other Cambodians who have been associated with us as circumstances permit."

There was no indication as to the exact number to be evacuated, but Anderson's statement anticipated that "there will be several hundred people involved."

The abandonment of the embassy and the evacuation had been planned under a cloak of official secrecy in order to prevent panic in the capital city and reprisals by Cambodians who may have felt betrayed by the action.

Ambassador John Gunther Dean ordered the evacuation as the final step of a four-stage plan begun several weeks ago when it became clear Phnom Penh would probably fall to the Communist insurgent forces which have surrounded the city in recent months.

The decision to close the embassy and evacuate all Americans was made Thursday but not implemented until Friday in an attempt to make the movement as quietly and orderly as possible.

"rights" except when it's an offender's third DWI offense, and therefore a felony. But, he suggested police should continue to allow citizens to make their own phone calls.

He sees nothing wrong with the policy requiring the mugging and fingerprinting of people booked into jail for DWI.

Violations of jail policy have occurred, Bruckner said. People have been denied a blanket or a mattress, he said, even though they were in control of their bodily functions. They were, in effect, being punished for the acts of others.

And Bruckner said that contrary to the charges of some liquor dispensers and drinkers, police are not marking cars, staking out taverns or keeping lists of cars in bar parking lots.

Bruckner also said he found no evidence to substantiate claims that policemen must write a specific number of tickets to meet a departmental "quota" system.

The need to give up in Cambodia was spurred by the advancement by the insurgents to within one mile of Phnom Penh's airport, the only existing link between the city and the outside.

The State Department noted the seriousness of the situation regarding the airport by saying the insurgents' military position had effectively barred its use in the evacuation movement.

The fall of Phnom Penh is expected in the next few days, although some American sources said the city might remain out of complete Communist control for as long as two weeks.

However, it was decided to move now regarding the evacuation because of the dismal military outlook concerning the airport. Dean has been slowly reducing the size of the embassy staff over the past few weeks from its normal strength of about 200 personnel.

In addition, he has quietly urged private organizations to remove their employees so that the final evacuation step would involve as few people as possible.

The decision, while finally made Friday night, was clearly inevitable when Congress refused to act on an administration request made last January to give the Cambodian government $222 million in emergency military aid for the current fiscal year.

Whether that aid would have allowed Cambodia to ride out the current insurgent attack is debatable, but it was evident that without the assistance there was no hope for fending off the Communist forces.

Initial reports of the evacuation gave no hint of the fate of the Cambodian government officials remaining. Earlier in the month, President Lon Nol left Cambodia for Hawaii, with a preliminary stop in Indonesia.

Appropriations Panel Action 'Appalls' Lewis

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue Friday said he is "appalled" at the Appropriations Committee's action budgeting full state funding for technical community colleges without regard for a pending legislative decision on whether to opt for state aid.

"It is an unusual and strange procedure in which they are engaged," Lewis said in a telephone interview.

The Education Committee, chaired by Lewis, has recommended a state aid program for the community colleges to supplement local tax support up to 2½ mills.

Gov. J. James Exon has also proposed a combination of state assistance and local tax support.

Awaiting discussion on the floor of the Legislature is LB344, the authorization bill for state aid and local control approved by the Education Committee.

Even though that authorization recommendation has not yet been discussed by the Legislature, Lewis noted, the Appropriations Committee Thursday made budget decisions on the colleges which run counter to the state aid proposal.

"It appears that, even after the Education Committee has had a hearing, fully discussed the issue and made its decision, the Appropriations Committee has decided it is going to write its own authorization determining how the community colleges will operate," he said. "Well, I can tell you that a number of us are looking forward to a discussion of this issue on the floor."

Lewis said he will ask Speaker Jules Burbach to schedule initial floor debate on LB344 within the next week to 10 days.

And, if the Legislature chooses the state aid option contained in that bill, Lewis said, he will offer amendments to the budget bill altering the Appropriations Committee's recommendations.

"Based on what has transpired," Lewis said, that would be a better solution than returning the issue to the budget unit for its alternative appropriations recommendations in view of legislative approval of the state aid concept.

Lewis said he would recommend some $11 million in state aid for the institutions in fiscal 1975-76.

The Appropriations Committee has recommended more than $19 million in state tax support — with state control and no local property tax effort.

Lewis said local control (with a local tax effort) is a better way to operate the schools.

"They should be geared to the local needs of each community college area," he said.

"That's the whole thrust of the program. The skills needed in the Omaha area are considerably different than the skills needed in the Sidney area."

State control might not only ignore local needs, he said, but "there is a real serious question as to how a single state governing board would treat each area."

Sen. Robert Clark of Sidney, vice chairman of the Appropriations Committee, has sponsored legislation providing state control under a revised state colleges board with full state funding.

"If he really feels that way," Lewis said, "perhaps the next step would be one statewide school board to operate elementary and secondary schools with total state funding."

The fact that Clark chose to "introduce a bill to change the procedure for operation of the community colleges" is an indication that he believed that would be a more "orderly way" of determining how to finance the colleges than deciding the issue through the budgeting process, Lewis said.

Clark's bill, LB128, was held by the Education Committee when it chose the alternative plan in LB344.

In exercising judgment on which people to release, Bruckner suggested officers consider whether the person has sufficient identification to reasonably assure their appearance in court, whether they have some means of getting home and their general condition.

Bruckner also recommends police discontinue their policy of towing away all DWI offenders' vehicles. He charged that police have mistakenly assumed they must tow in such cars.

Instead, Bruckner suggests that where possible the car be released to a friend or family member of parked somewhere close to the arrest scene.

While many people have charged their constitutional rights have been violated, Bruckner said no such violations have taken place. However, he observed, the police are offering what he called the "bare minimum" rights above those legally required.

Injunction Delays Beef Grade Rules

Omaha (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge has issued a temporary injunction which will delay the implementation of new beef grading standards scheduled to take effect nationwide Monday, unless there is a further ruling to stay the injunction.

Judge Robert V. Denney issued the temporary injunction Friday afternoon in response to a request by the Independent Meat Packers Association of Omaha, which named Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz.

The standards, vigorously opposed by some consumer groups and meat packers, would lower the amount of marbling required for some cattle aged 30 months and less to be graded choice and establish new yield grading standards.

S. Viet Paratroopers Leapfrog Enemy Lines

From Press Reports

Saigon — Elite South Vietnamese paratroopers leapfrogged Communist lines outside Saigon Friday aboard an armada of American-supplied helicopters in a massive gamble to save the threatened capital.

More than 3,000 troops were airlifted from Saigon to the edge of the province capital of Xuan Loc, 38 miles northeast of Saigon on Highway 1, where heavy fighting was reported underway in a battle that could be the decisive one of the war.

Radio messages from Xuan Loc said its defenders had stopped two human wave assaults by Communist forces with tanks and artillery and were bracing for a third attack.

The operation was seen as a major gamble by government commanders to obtain a badly needed morale boosting victory. By moving more than 3,000 elite troops out of Saigon, the joint general staff stripped the capital of half its regular defense force and left 4,000 soldiers manning the inner defenses of Saigon.

Viet Cong-North Vietnamese forces struck hard at a provincial capital and district town on opposite sides of Saigon, and the fighting was watched closely to see if it was the start of a drive on the South Vietnamese capital.

The Saigon military command said 243 Communist-led troops were killed by infantrymen, tanks and airstrikes near the town of Ben Tranh, 30 miles southwest of Saigon.

At Xuan Loc dawn brought renewed fighting, with Saigon reporting more than 1,000 attackers now slain in four days of fighting. Government spokesmen also said 27 North Vietnamese tanks have been destroyed.

South Vietnamese casualties were placed at 33 killed and 171 wounded.

In other Indochina developments:

—In Thailand, Communist-led rebels opened fire on Thai army helicopters bringing reinforcements to a battle in the northern part of the country, killing 17 more troops. It brought government casualties in the three-day-old battle to 33 dead, one of the government's worst setbacks in its 15-year war against the guerrillas.

—More than 250 Vietnamese orphans flew out of Saigon for homes in the United States. It raised to about 2,000 the number of children taken out of South Vietnam in feverish programs that reached a high point late last week.

—In Rome, an official of the Vatican's relief organization, Caritas, said the "mass expropriation" of Vietnamese orphans was "a deplorable and unjustified mistake." The official, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Charles Grange of France, said "adoption is contrary to the cultural traditions of the Vietnamese people."

—The American Committee for UNICEF, the U.N. Children's Fund, will launch a major fund-raising campaign in the United States this weekend to provide food, medicine, clothing and shelter to mothers and children in need in both Saigon and Communist-controlled parts of Vietnam as well as Cambodia and Laos.

Meanwhile, a Viet Cong radio broadcast called for the civilian population and armed forces in "western South Vietnam" to rise up and seize full control of their areas. "This is about the time the Thieu and U.S. governments will receive the decisive attacks," the broadcast asserted.

Malaysian Troops Mobilized To Hunt Communist Guerrillas

Kuala Lumpur (UPI) — Two thousand Malaysian troops backed by artillery have been mobilized into a search for Communist guerrillas who have killed 12 soldiers and wounded 30 since Monday near the border with Thailand, military sources said Friday.

Five soldiers, including a captain, were killed and a dozen wounded Thursday when a unit involved in the hunt was attacked in the third major ambush in five days.

The military sources said the reinforcements were trying to cut off escape routes into Thailand from the scene of the longest sustained Communist offensive in five years.

The sudden flareup of Communist attacks in Malaysia has caused fears that the "domino theory" may be being realized in the wake of Communist successes in South Vietnam and Cambodia.

Western diplomatic sources have said there are signs the crumbling resistance in Indochina was sparking new Communist activity in other areas of Southeast Asia, including Malaysia and Thailand.

Thursday's ambush near Naka, 20 miles from the border and 250 miles north of Kuala Lumpur, occurred four miles from Muong Gajah, where a band of 60 guerrillas ambushed a military convoy Monday, killing seven and wounding 10.

A National Security Council spokesman said the same insurgent group was believed responsible for Thursday's ambush in which guerrillas fired from roadside hideouts on a five-vehicle convoy before being driven off after a 30-minute firefight.

The Communist offensive around the Muong Gajah-Naka area of Kedah State began Monday afternoon when one poorly aimed rocket and several gunshots were fired at a base near the huge muda irrigation dam.

The other ambush Monday was four miles from the multi-million dollar Temenggor Dam Project, 150 miles north of here. Four soldiers were seriously wounded by rifle fire and booby traps and three others badly hurt Wednesday in followup operations.

Military sources in the operations area said an estimated 2,000 troops had been rushed to join the search in the Muong Gajah and the Temenggor Dam-Grik Districts.

The Communist offensive is being undertaken by the militant Marxist-Leninist breakaway faction of the Communist Party of Malaysia. The Communists have fought a running, although low-key, insurgency from the Thai border since their 1968-69 uprising was put down.

Birdwatchers: Try Looking For Whales

BAR HARBOR, Maine (AP) — Bored with bird watching? Why not try looking for whales. The sight of the huge marine mammals can be an awe-inspiring experience, says Steven Katona, chief organizer of the Maine Coast Whale Sighting Network.

"To see a very big one, especially to see it up close and hear it breathing and sense the tremendous power of the whale, is a very majestic moment," he said. Hundreds of observers from Cape Cod, Mass., to Campobello Island in New Brunswick, Canada, have been encouraged to keep an eye out for whales, which normally begin to appear off New England in late April.

The network, now in its third year, is compiling sighting reports in order to better gauge the abundance, distribution and habits of whales.

Portugal Parties Abandon Power

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portugal's main political parties signed a pledge Friday to write a constitution that gives fundamental lawmaking powers to the country's increasingly leftist military rulers.

Leaders of six parties put their names on a pact committing Portugal to a kind of military dictatorship for the next three to five years.

Two weeks to the day before Portuguese voters elect delegates to a constitutional assembly, the civilian politicians accepted a detailed constitutional draft which decides the question in advance. The draft was prepared by the military.

The elections are to be held as scheduled on April 25, but their significance has been scaled down from an act of popular sovereignty to a sort of political pulse-taking.

Signing the pact were leaders of the Socialist party, the Popular Democrats, the Center Social Democrats, the Communists, the Portuguese Democratic Movement, a Communist-front group, and the Popular Socialist Front.

Six splinter parties competing in the election refused to sign. The Socialists and Popular Democrats were cool toward the draft, but felt pressure to go along. Officials of both parties have been saying privately they had no choice, that to refuse would mean being put out of business by the army.

The pact removes any doubt about where power lies. It establishes that the principal organ of power will be the all-military Revolutionary Council hastily created last month by left-wing officers after the collapse of a feeble uprising by conservative officers.

Floods, 17-Inch Rains Wash Through Alabama

By United Press International
Floodwaters spawned by 17-inch rains Friday drove hundreds of families from their homes in southern Alabama and northwest Florida, killed at least one person and caused extensive losses of livestock and newly planted crops.

Officials in both south Alabama and the Florida peninsula said the floods were the worst in nearly 50 years.

The rushing red floodwaters of the Choctawhatchee River, rising toward what was expected to be the highest crest since 1929, strained against a 45-foot levee protecting the business district of Geneva, Ala.

Mayor Hugh Herring at one point Friday said he expected to order the town's entire population of 4,000 persons to flee. Later in the day State Police Capt. W. A. Hornsby said authorities were optimistic the levee — built by the Works Progress Administration during the Depression — would hold.

The Choctawhatchee drove hundreds of families from Florida homes at Brewton, Ala., rampaging Murder Creek drove 100 persons to higher ground and washed away gasoline-laden tanks.

Tornadoes swept north Florida, felling trees and power lines and damaging homes and other buildings in three counties.

S. Viet Paratroopers Leapfrog Enemy Lines

From Press Reports
Saigon — Elite South Vietnamese paratroopers leapfrogged Communist lines outside Saigon Friday aboard an armada of American-supplied helicopters in a massive gamble to save the threatened capital.
More than 3,000 troops were airlifted from Saigon to the edge of the province capital of Xuan Loc, 38 miles northeast of Saigon on Highway 1, where heavy fighting was reported underway in a battle that could be the decisive one of the war.
Radio messages from Xuan Loc said its defenders had stopped two human wave assaults by Communist forces with tanks and artillery and were bracing for a third attack.
The operation was seen as a major gamble by government commanders to obtain a badly needed and morale boosting victory. By moving more than 3,000 elite troops out of Saigon, the joint general staff stripped the capital of half its regular defense force and left 4,000 soldiers manning the inner defenses of Saigon.
Viet Cong-North Vietnamese forces struck hard at a provincial capital and district town on opposite sides of Saigon, and the fighting was watched closely to see if it was the start of a drive on the South Vietnamese capital.
The Saigon military command said 243 Communist-led troops were killed by infantrymen, tanks and airstrikes near the town of Ben Thanh, 30 miles southwest of Saigon.
At Xuan Loc dawn brought renewed fighting, with Saigon reporting more than 1,000 attackers now slain in four days of fighting. Government spokesmen also said 27 North Vietnamese tanks have been destroyed.

South Vietnamese casualties were placed at 33 killed and 171 wounded.
In other Indochina developments:
—In Thailand, Communist-led rebels opened fire on Thai army helicopters bringing reinforcements to a battle in the northern part of the country, killing 17 more troops. It brought government casualties in the three-day-old battle to 33 dead, one of the government's worst setbacks in its 15-year war against the guerrillas.
—More than 250 Vietnamese orphans flew out of Saigon for homes in the United States. It raised to about 2,000 the number of children taken out of South Vietnam in feverish programs that reached a high point late last week.
—In Rome, an official of the Vatican's relief organization, Caritas, said the "mass expatriation" of Vietnamese orphans was "a deplorable and unjustified mistake." The official, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Charles Grange of France, said "adoption is contrary to the cultural traditions of the Vietnamese people."
—The American Committee for UNICEF, the U.N. Children's Fund, will launch a major fund-raising campaign in the United States this weekend to provide food, medicine, clothing and shelter to mothers and children in need in both Saigon and Communist-controlled parts of Vietnam as well as Cambodia and Laos.

Soviet Envoys Talk To Israelis

... About Geneva Talks—Paper

TEL AVIV (AP) — The Soviet Union has made a secret approach to Israel to break the Middle East deadlock by renewing the Geneva peace conference, a leading Israeli newspaper reported Friday.

The usually well-informed daily Haaretz said two Soviet envoys flew to Israel last week and held talks with Premier Yitzhak Rabin and Foreign Minister Yigal Allon, offering to resume relations with the Jewish state if agreement was reached at Geneva.

The Israeli Foreign Ministry refused to confirm or deny the report. It took the unusual step of issuing a "no comment" statement that said "Israel will not react to reports as to whether contacts did or did not take place with the Soviet Union ..."

Other officials kept silent.

In Moscow, the Soviet Foreign Ministry also declined comment.

Haaretz quoted the Soviet emissaries as saying that in exchange for an Arab-Israeli agreement at Geneva, the Soviet Union was willing to guarantee Israel's security within the pre-1967 borders and resume diplomatic relations, broken since the 1967 Middle East war.

Haaretz said the Soviets were "very interested in resuming the Geneva talks" because Moscow feared that a continuing Middle East stalemate might ignite another war and bring about a confrontation with the United States.

The Soviet envoys were told that Israel "had not yet determined her detailed position on the Geneva talks," Haaretz said.

Haaretz said that in addition to the meeting in Israel, the Israeli and Soviet ambassadors had met in Washington and further contacts were likely between the two countries.

Shortly after the Haaretz report was published, Israel's chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Mordechai Gur, told a news conference there have been big Soviet arms shipments to Egypt, Syria and Iraq. He gave no statistics but said "the figures are very, very big," and that because of Soviet supplies, the Arab armies were far more powerful than before the 1973 war.

The Israeli government has maintained for almost eight years that it is ready to renew relations with Moscow, but that the Soviets broke the diplomatic ties and the Soviets must make the first move to repair them.

Only last week Rabin said it was ironic for the Soviet Union to act as cochairman of a Middle East peace conference while it followed a one-sided policy in the Middle East.

Bill Affects Loan Powers Of Rail Board

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-nine House members have introduced a bill that would change the authority of the U.S. Railway Association to allow it to make loans to such lines as the present Rock Island Railroad.

No similar legislation has been filed in the Senate, where Rock Island supporters instead are expected to try to accomplish the same goal through amendments to USRA appropriations.

The bill would amend the 1973 Rail Reorganization Act — which created the quasi-governmental corporation to reorganize Northeastern Lines — to authorize it to make loans to a railroad undergoing reorganization under federal bankruptcy statutes.

Escamilla Found Guilty Of Assault But Not Of Rape

A United Press International story in Friday morning's Star about an action of the State Supreme Court incorrectly reported that Bernard Escamilla was found guilty of rape by the Scotts Bluff County District Court.

Escamilla was charged with rape but convicted not of rape but of assault with intent to commit rape.

That conviction of assault with intent to commit rape was reversed by the State Supreme Court, which ordered a new trial, saying prejudicial testimony was allowed in the original trial when the alleged victim and two police officers were allowed to testify in depth on the contents of the original complaint.

N.Y. Times Summary

Budget Ceiling Approved

Washington — Partially reversing some of its earlier decisions, the Senate Budget Committee gave final approval to a proposed ceiling of $365 million on government spending for next year. The figure was $8.4 billion, or 2.6%, higher than the administration has proposed for the next fiscal year, which begins July 1. But it was also $3.2 billion lower than the one approved last week by the House Budget Committee.

Soviets To Borrow From West

Moscow — The Soviet Union signed an agreement to borrow $250 million from a group of Western banks. The loan was said to be the largest the Soviet Union has ever arranged with private Western financial institutions. Lazard Freres heads the group of lenders, which includes Morgan Guaranty, Banque National de Paris and several other Western European and North American banks.

Jackie Gets $3 Million

New York — Mrs. Aristotle Onassis, under the will of her late husband, receives $3 million, a bequest far less than published reports had indicated she would get, according to friends of the Onassis family. The comparatively small amount apparently reflects the fact that shortly before his death Onassis had decided to divorce his wife, and that it was the minimum her husband could leave her under Greek law in view of his large estate.

World Conference Expected

Paris — Delegates at a preparatory meeting on energy said Friday concessions were being made in a procedural dispute that should pave the way for a full-scale conference on world economic problems this summer.

Rumor 'Gross, Despicable'

Hong Kong — The two principal leaders of the Communist-led insurgents in Cambodia have denied as "gross and despicable rumour" the reports of the first contacts between the Cambodian government and the Khmer Rouge insurgents.

Sewage Plant Grants Mismanaged — EPA

Washington (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency said Friday it has turned up evidence of widespread mismanagement, faulty construction and misrepresentation of costs in at least 41 federal sewage plant construction grants around the country.

Millions of dollars are involved, EPA sources said, and they fear the discoveries so far might represent only a fraction of the irregularities.

Arvin L. Alm, the EPA assistant administrator for planning and management, said his agency's audit program was continuing and new regulations were being drafted to crack down on the management of federally-funded sewage treatment plant construction.

Alm released a draft report covering audits conducted on 41 EPA grants for 28 sewage treatment plants in 12 states: California, Connecticut, Florida, Indiana, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, New Jersey, Washington and West Virginia.

He said the audits have turned up $13.5 million in questionable costs on projects worth a total $120.7 million — a rejection rate of 11.2% of the claimed cost.

Most of the grants were to individual cities. Some EPA officials said the Stockton finding was the worst uncovered so far.

"We concluded that the city of Stockton was not effectively administering the two EPA construction grants," the audit reported, citing design errors, major construction problems and unreasonable profit by the consulting-engineering firm hired by the city.

As a result, the audit said, EPA is questioning $494,672 of a total $6.88 million incurred by the city for construction work and is considering refusing to pay another $2.2 million of that total unless the contractor corrects inadequate work.

Soviet Envoys Talk To Israelis

... About Geneva Talks—Paper

TEL AVIV (AP) — The Soviet Union has made a secret approach to Israel to break the Middle East deadlock by renewing the Geneva peace conference, a leading Israeli newspaper reported Friday.

The usually well-informed daily Haaretz said two Soviet envoys flew to Israel last week and held talks with Premier Yitzhak Rabin and Foreign Minister Yigal Allon, offering to resume relations with the Jewish state if agreement was reached at Geneva.

The Israeli Foreign Ministry refused to confirm or deny the report. It took the unusual step of issuing a "no comment" statement that said "Israel will not react to reports as to whether contacts did or did not take place with the Soviet Union ..."

Other officials kept silent.

In Moscow, the Soviet Foreign Ministry also declined comment.

Haaretz quoted the Soviet emissaries as saying that in exchange for an Arab-Israeli agreement at Geneva, the Soviet Union was willing to guarantee Israel's security within the pre-1967 borders and resume diplomatic relations, broken since the 1967 Middle East war.

Haaretz said the Soviets were "very interested in resuming the Geneva talks" because Moscow feared that a continuing Middle East stalemate might ignite another war and bring about a confrontation with the United States.

The Soviet envoys were told that Israel "had not yet determined her detailed position on the Geneva talks," Haaretz said.

Haaretz said that in addition to the meeting in Israel, the Israeli and Soviet ambassadors had met in Washington and further contacts were likely between the two countries.

Shortly after the Haaretz report was published, Israel's chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Mordechai Gur, told a news conference there have been big Soviet arms shipments to Egypt, Syria and Iraq. He gave no statistics but said "the figures are very, very big," and that because of Soviet supplies, the Arab armies were far more powerful than before the 1973 war.

The Israeli government has maintained for almost eight years that it is ready to renew relations with Moscow, but that the Soviets broke the diplomatic ties and the Soviets must make the first move to repair them.

Only last week Rabin said it was ironic for the Soviet Union to act as cochairman of a Middle East peace conference while it followed a one-sided policy in the Middle East.

Sewage Plant Grants Mismanaged — EPA

Washington (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency said Friday it has turned up evidence of widespread mismanagement, faulty construction and misrepresentation of costs in at least 41 federal sewage plant construction grants around the country.

Millions of dollars are involved, EPA sources said, and they fear the discoveries so far might represent only a fraction of the irregularities.

Arvin L. Alm, the EPA assistant administrator for planning and management, said his agency's audit program was continuing and new regulations were being drafted to crack down on the management of federally-funded sewage treatment plant construction.

Alm released a draft report covering audits conducted on 41 EPA grants for 28 sewage treatment plants in 12 states: California, Connecticut, Florida, Indiana, Louisiana, Maryland,

Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, New Jersey, Washington and West Virginia.

He said the audits have turned up $13.5 million in questionable costs on projects worth a total $120.7 million — a rejection rate of 11.2% of the claimed cost.

Most of the grants were to individual cities. Some EPA officials said the Stockton finding was the worst uncovered so far.

"We concluded that the city of Stockton was not effectively administering the two EPA construction grants," the audit reported, citing design errors, major construction problems and unreasonable profit by the consulting-engineering firm hired by the city.

As a result, the audit said, EPA is questioning $494,672 of a total $6.88 million incurred by the city for construction work and is considering refusing to pay another $2.2 million of that total unless the contractor corrects inadequate work.

Bill Affects Loan Powers Of Rail Board

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-nine House members have introduced a bill that would change the authority of the U.S. Railway Association to allow it to make loans to such lines as the present Rock Island Railroad.

No similar legislation has been filed in the Senate, where Rock Island supporters instead are expected to try to accomplish the same goal through amendments to USRA appropriations.

The bill would amend the 1973 Rail Reorganization Act — which created the quasi-governmental corporation to reorganize Northeastern Lines — to authorize it to make loans to a railroad undergoing reorganization under federal bankruptcy statutes.

Escamilla Found Guilty Of Assault But Not Of Rape

A United Press International story in Friday morning's Star about an action of the State Supreme Court incorrectly reported that Bernard Escamilla was found guilty of rape by the Scotts Bluff County District Court.

Escamilla was charged with rape but convicted not of rape but of assault with intent to commit rape.

That conviction of assault with intent to commit rape was reversed by the State Supreme Court, which ordered a new trial, saying prejudicial testimony was allowed in the original trial when the alleged victim and two police officers were allowed to testify in depth on the contents of the original complaint.

N.Y. Times Summary Budget Ceiling Approved

Washington — Partially reversing some of its earlier decisions, the Senate Budget Committee gave final approval to a proposed ceiling of $365 million on government spending for next year. The figure was $9.4 billion, or 2.6%, higher than the administration has proposed for the next fiscal year, which begins July 1. But it was also $3.2 billion lower than the one approved last week by the House Budget Committee.

Soviets To Borrow From West

Moscow — The Soviet Union signed an agreement to borrow $250 million from a group of Western banks. The loan was said to be the largest the Soviet Union has ever arranged with private Western financial institutions. Lazard Freres heads the group of lenders, which includes Morgan Guaranty, Banque National de Paris and several other Western European and North American banks.

Jackie Gets $3 Million

New York — Mrs. Aristotle Onassis, under the will of her late husband, receives $3 million, a bequest far less than published reports had indicated she would get, according to friends of the Onassis family. The comparatively small amount apparently reflects the fact that shortly before his death Onassis had decided to divorce his wife, and that it was the minimum her husband could leave her under Greek law in view of his large estate.

World Conference Expected

Paris — Delegates at a preparatory meeting on energy said Friday concessions were being made in a procedural dispute that should pave the way for a full-scale conference on world economic problems this summer.

Rumor 'Gross, Despicable'

Hong Kong — The two principal leaders of the Communist-led insurgents in Cambodia have denied as "gross and despicable rumour" the reports of the first contacts between the Cambodian government and the Khmer Rouge insurgents.

Echo With A Grand Rapids Accent

President Ford was an amalgam of voices and thoughts past and present in his address to the Congress this week.

The challenging rhetoric of John Kennedy with a Grand Rapids accent; the sometimes belligerent, sometimes conciliatory rhetoric of Richard Nixon with a Grand Rapids accent and — it almost seemed like — a German accent with a Grand Rapids accent.

What the expansive speech, longwinded by American presidential standards, amounted to was a sweeping rehash of old American foreign policy, some good, some bad policy, but nothing new.

And the essence of it was that we can buy back our self respect and the confidence of our allies for $722 million.

The President has obviously gone slumming and hunted for bargain self respect and confidence in the lesser shops.

If confidence of our allies in our commitment is the issue, in Ford's terms, then nothing short of the permanent salvation of the Thieu government and the eternal division of North and South Vietnam will be the only reassurances and that will cost more than $722 million in military aid to South Vietnam. It will mean American sentry duty into the next century. We doubt, however, that confidence in America has been lost to any dangerous degree.

If self respect is the issue, then we better resolve to leave some loose thread alone and be strong enough to admit error, pull back and re-evaluate where our true interests lie and what we are capable of doing. By admitting error we can regain self respect.

It does not look as if the Congress will go along with another three-quarters of a billion dollars and we can't blame Congress for not wanting to throw good money after bad. That's a lot of money to throw away — which we will be doing — only to make us feel a little less guilty.

We can't blame the bipartisan spokesmen in Congress for wanting to be careful in tampering with the war powers act; in "clarifying," as the President said, executive power to act in emergency conditions with regard to protecting American nationals and pro-American Vietnamese.

There should be no legislative changes which would allow for the possibility of grand scale re-involvement based on a narrow pretext. No chance to build long tunnels at the ends of which there is no light.

Evacuate the Americans — that can accelerate now. Provide humanitarian aid as it can be used. Insist on major power agreement for support for unhindered evacuation of those South Vietnamese who want to leave. That can be accomplished if the Soviet Union believes in detente and the old, shorn but still valid concept of peaceful coexistence.

But save us the agony of another Vietnam war. The people decided long ago they didn't want it.

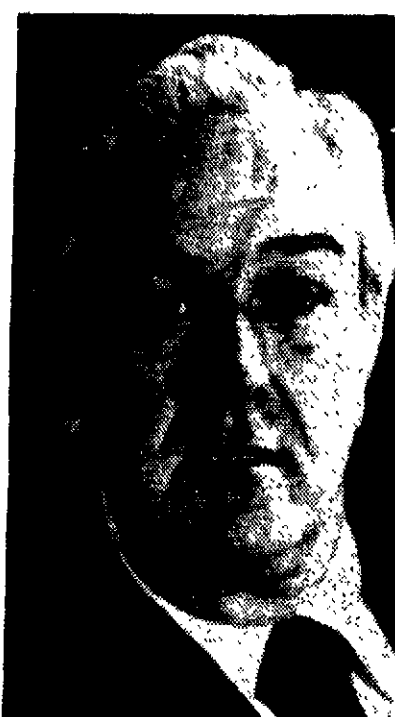

WASHINGTON — Watching Big John Connally of Texas in the dock here on charges of bribery, you have to remember him when he was governor of Texas, secretary of the Navy, a power in the Democratic Party, wounded partner of Jack Kennedy in the Dallas assassination, and finally a converted Republican secretary of the Treasury and adviser to President Nixon.

Of all the people who rose and fell with Nixon, Big John is probably the most interesting. With both parties in desperation for an exciting presidential candidate of the right age in 1976, he was the most confident, handsome, eloquent and experienced politician on the American scene, but somehow, despite everything he had going for him, he threw it all away.

Connally has always used this town like a swinging door: a rush of wind, a whirling sense of something important about to happen, a big smile, and there he is or there he goes, always in a hell of a hurry. He is almost a symbol of our present troubles: all fast ball and no control, and you have to wonder where he'd be now if he had played it easy.

His legal problems are not the most intriguing part of the story and can be left to the courts. The larger question is why this consummate politician who was supposed to know every card in the political deck played his cards so badly, misjudged his own Democratic Party, switched to the Republican Party, and managed to lose the confidence of both.

The explanation, or at least part of the explanation, is that he broke the first rule of Texas politics, which is party loyalty.

John B. Connally

He couldn't wait for events to unfold or hold his temper. Some would say he was merely impatient, others that he was an arrogant opportunist, but anyway, as seen from Washington, he was a jumper.

He first blew in here as administrative assistant to Lyndon Johnson in 1949, with all Johnson's cunning, with none of LBJ's insecurity, and all of Johnson's ambition, but he chucked it after a few months and went home to prove himself in Texas, which is to say, to make money.

A few million dollars later, he suddenly reappeared again through the swinging door as Kennedy's secretary of the Navy, but even before he had figured out his way around the Pentagon, he resigned to run for governor of Texas. Even his enemies, who are not scarce, agree he was a good governor.

But he fussed with Johnson and Humphrey at the 1968 Democratic convention, and finally broke with his party, campaigned against McGovern and for Nixon in 1972, and thought Nixon could make him vice president and maybe even president after the resignation of Spiro Agnew.

If Connally had stuck with his party in 1968, or so many leading Democrats believe, Humphrey might have edged out Nixon, but when he switched to the Republicans and campaigned for Nixon in 1972 against McGovern, he infuriated the Democrats and bet everything on Nixon, who destroyed him in the end.

"It" is the shortest and saddest word in the political dictionary. Connally's judgment about the Democratic move to the left proved to be right. If he had opposed McGovern but stuck to his party, he might now be in a better position than anybody else to win the Democratic nomination in 1976 and the presidency.

He is not, of course, unique, but merely a symbol of the irony of political life. All the leading figures on the Washington stage these days find themselves in a strange and unexpected situation. Not so long ago, Gerald Ford did not expect to be lecturing the Congress as president or presiding over the ultimate tragedy of Vietnam.

Nelson Rockefeller, until recently, never imagined he would be presiding over the Senate as Vice President — a job he rejected for 20 years. And Henry Kissinger, while he longed to be secretary of state didn't think if he made it that he would be abandoned and condemned by many of the colleagues he most admired in the Universities.

But Connally is different in an important way. He might have made it all the way to the White House, but he was pinched for political speeding, and had to turn to Edward Bennett Williams, the most hated Democrat on Nixon's "enemies list", to defend him in the courts.

All this would be funny if it weren't so sad. If Connally had hired Ed Williams to be his political campaign manager for the presidency instead of his defense lawyer, he might have made it. The candidates who have stayed the course are not the men of Connally's age, but the old geezers in their 60's — Ford, Rockefeller, and Reagan, on the Republican side, and Humphrey, Muskie, and Jackson on the Democratic side — admirable but not an inspiring lot.

There are younger men on the side who have a chance, for the country is obviously longing for something new — among them Howard Baker of Tennessee, Mo Udall of Arizona and a few young governors — but Connally probably had a better chance than most of them but he blew it.

America, we are told, is a nation of laws and not of men or women, but the accidents of personality and character often make a big difference, and Connally is only the latest illustration of the point.

...And Something He Didn't Say

The president got a rousing response to his support of the CIA in his speech. He made the agency sound as wholesome as the Boy Scouts and more necessary than sex.

Truthfully, no one really wants to argue that intelligence gathering has no place in the modern world. It does. Few responsible people are doubting the "legitimate" missions of agencies such as the CIA, aimed at gathering external data.

What is needed, though, is a review of the intelligence gathering function with an eye toward the elimination of duplication and rivalry. Better congressional oversight of the intelligence function is also a goal of the current investigations, and Ford agrees with that and said so in his Thursday speech.

What he neglected to mention, and the mention of it would have made him so much more credible, is the problem of snooping on private citizens for political reasons.

This is what got the CIA into trouble in the first place, not the Russian submarine salvage operation.

We had a president — actually, more than one — who used the CIA and the FBI in almost as crude a fashion as Stalin used Beria. Most Americans don't want the CIA and the FBI or other intelligence agencies following people around because they go to political meetings or speak their minds.

It was the fear that the American president was more and more inclined to use the agencies as his own private armies or political goon squads which prompted the investigations.

Ford was monstrously remiss in failing in his speech to clearly state his opposition to political abuse of the intelligence establishment.

Tax Politics

WASHINGTON — A thought for income tax time. Of late, the President and others have been warning us of the appalling growth of the public sector. Federal, state and local government outlays, now nearly 40% of the Gross National Product, may soon rise to 50%. One way or another, our taxes must rise with it. Federal income taxes may be cut, but Social Security levies and state taxes continue to go up.

Alas, critical political rhetoric is cheap — cheaper even than the shrinking dollars with which we pay our April tax bills. But in the event that our national leaders care to backstop routine oratory with actual legislation to stop the endlessly rising tax escalator, here are three suggestions:

First, limit the proportion of national (or state) income that can be taken by government in taxes. In other words, if we really are threatened by a trend that threatens to channel 50% of our Gross National Product or national income through official hands, then why not adopt legal limitations? Most important, we might prohibit the federal government from levying (except in war) taxes in excess of 30% of the GNP. Next, states could be barred from taking in taxes more than, say, eight per cent of their individual "State Products." Each state would be allowed to set its own level. Municipalities would also set limitations. As a result, the various jurisdictions would face a reality they do not face today — ceiling beyond which they cannot levy, dispense and fritter away.

Back in 1973, then-Governor Ronald Reagan tried to put such a limitation into the California State Constitution, but his proposal — called Proposition 1 — received only 45% support in a voter referendum. In part, Proposition 1 ran afoul of arguments that the state tax limitations would only have shifted the local government services burden to local property taxes. But the idea may still work with better coordination and division of burdens between jurisdictions.

Secondly, we ought to borrow the Canadian federal government's system of indexed income taxation. When inflation pushes Canadian family earnings up, their tax obligation is adjusted to reflect real, not inflated income. As a result, Canadian officials do not have the same slapdash attitude towards inflation. They do not get higher revenues from it. In the United States, of course, inflation carries no tax adjustment but pushes families into higher brackets. Mounting federal revenues are an American bureaucrat's delight.

A third idea: Oblige the Internal Revenue Service to provide each taxpayer with a detailed two- or three-page breakdown of where his or her money is going. Back in 1968, Senator Hubert Humphrey suggested that a simple booklet be sent out with each tax form indicating what proportion of every tax dollar goes for national defense, police services, government administration, education programs, and the like. However, this idea turned out to be a hot potato. Senator Humphrey desisted after administrators in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare told him that if the public learned how much of its money was being spent for welfare and kindred programs, the outcry would "set social progress back 50 years."

"Social progress" by their standards, perhaps. I am inclined to think that true reform lies in establishing fiscally and programatically responsible governments in which people can have faith. California TV Commentator Lowell Ponte has carried democratization a step further by proposing that when Americans pay their taxes, they be given full budget information and then be allowed to vote on federal spending priorities. While this idea is a bit far-fetched, it is cheering merely to think of the panic its initiation would trigger in the grey-green bureaucratic rabbit warrens of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

New Cars For The Sheriff

Request For 15 Cars

From The Lincoln Star of April 9: "Sheriff's Office Requests Purchase of 15 New Cars."

If a deputy is getting 18 cents a mile for the use of his car, he is being over paid because I drove a truck from coast to coast for only 10 cents a mile and I do not see why the taxpayers have to pay for 15 new cars at an estimated cost of $51,000.

If Sheriff Merle Karnopp is going to buy 15 cars, why only six with six-cylinder engines? Why not all with six-cylinder engines and three-speed transmission, as it would save the people a lot of tax money. Or is it because the deputies do not know how to drive a six-cylinder-engine car with three-speed transmission?

JAMES JOHNSON

Wants Officers' Cars Marked

In reading the April 9 Star, I noticed a request from Lancaster County Sheriff Karnopp. Sheriff Karnopp has requested and proposed to the County Board a purchase of 15 new "unmarked" cars for his deputies.

Why the request for unmarked cars? Could Sheriff Karnopp be trying to save us money by saving on paint to mark the cars? Could it be they don't want people to know who they are? Or where they are?

A good reason for having marked cars is that the public can identify our peace officers when THEY are in need. The cars double for errands (serving papers, etc.) while also being used to stop traffic violators.

If we must spend the $51,000 on 15 new cars for the Lancaster sheriff's department, let's have them marked.

Federal Spanking

The federal government, whose chief industry is Washington, is confusing me with its standards of ready-wear laws which are expected to fit the nation like a tailored suit.

Granted, some of the legislation is clearly progress but the whole spirit or sport of the matter is taken away by the "if's." Even the most scolding parent does not say (on the first request): "If you do not do this, I'll cut off your allowance." Threats can come on the second or third pass but never, tactlessly, on the first.

I wish to commend the Nebraska Legislature for boldly defying the motorcycle helmet law. Notwithstanding the safety aspect, the helmet law plus certification of ambulance attendants and (you may remember) the retreat of proud, informative highway signs on Interstate roads accompanied by "if you don't" is downright impudent to the opinion and sensitivity of our "individual" senators.

"Individuals" is the term I am proud to use because these legislative persons are able to think for themselves and not bend with the palms.

Some of us hope that the great state of California will look at the precedent of Nebraska's Legislature when they consider the same threats at Sacramento. I pray that they quoted our spirited asset, Ernie Chambers, that "a person has the constitutional right to be a fool."

I'm really looking for more frankness from my federal government. Instead of having laws conveyed with companion threats of punishment, I think they (the Washington lawmakers) should bring back old-fashioned spanking, or just say, frankly: "Look, some helmet manufacture lobbyists gave our family a mini-bike, or a new filter pump for our pool and bought me a good lunch and I've got to pay some dues."

The School 'Pushouts'

I do not have children in school but am concerned about many of the young people I see on the streets. Some of them seem so lost.

I think school board candidate Milan Wall has a good point when he says he will visit a school each week. After he has checked the programs with the teachers, there are several things I think should be done.

I would suggest that he interview students at random — not just the ones the teachers tell him to. Then he should talk to the "pushouts" and their parents. He would no doubt be amazed at what he hears. Regardless of how hard the parents try to persuade the students to attend classes, they get nowhere, as the students can feel when they are not wanted in school. I am not saying the students are perfect — but who is?

Some try to go on with their education, but they become frustrated when they are handed a schedule so impossible that there are not enough hours in the day to take care of it, with the ultimatum that they can come to school "on my terms or not at all."

The pushouts cannot find work as most employers do not hire anyone not attending classes or without a diploma. So all there is left for them to do is walk the streets and loaf. Soon they get into bad company and trouble. Our jail is filled and we are in need of another courtroom, so I have heard.

What we really need is a school system cleanup. I wonder if some of the teachers and counselors are not too old to cope with the problems of youth?

With our jails getting more crowded, our classrooms are getting emptier, and the teachers are asking for higher salaries. Before granting raises, the school board members should do a little investigating of school problems.

Don't the teachers realize that the parents of the pushouts as well as other residents of the city and county are paying taxes for better schools and should have them?

The Vietnam Pattern

Secret military agreements just announced by the White House help explain why General Thieu has felt so free to ignore all the requirements of the peace agreement aimed at settling the conflict by political means. In depending only on Washington, Thieu lost the small support he had in his own country. Today not a single political personality in Saigon outside of Thieu's tiny personal group and not a single religious leader backs Thieu or his demands for American reintervention and more military aid.

With Thieu on his way out, the coalition government mandated in the peace agreement can at last become reality. The peace agreement outlines a three-part administration in Saigon to include representatives of (1) the present regime, (2) the Provisional Revolutionary Government (the Viet Cong) and (3) the neutralists, or so-called Third Force. Many of the leaders of this third group have been jailed by Thieu: being "neutralist" is a crime under Saigon laws.

Because they have not fought on either side in the war, the people now in the jails could play an important role in bringing the two sides into a working relationship. Their only crime is to have opposed Thieu's harsh and corrupt rule.

Letters sent now to the Saigon Embassy in Washington, D. C. and President Ford urging that the political prisoners be freed, Thieu be retired, and the peace agreement's plan for a three-part Council of National Reconciliation be enacted can bring an end to this terrible war.

The alternative is certain defeat for General Thieu. Then he will leave like Lon Nol. As Nguyen Ngoo Lan, a Roman Catholic priest, pointed out: "For the great majority of the population, regardless of their political ideology, be they Liberation Front, nationalists, or Third Force, things are different: We will always live in this country . . . That one more Vietnamese youngster dies today because of the war, no matter who he is, what ideology he stands for . . . (will mean that) two more hands will be lacking the future for reconstruction."

Criticism Of 'Liberal Press'

Has there ever been so much soul-searching by the liberal media, a purge of guilt, in their effort to show the plight of the people of South Vietnam? I fear their efforts will do South Vietnam refugees no good. Hand-wringing is a futile gesture and will do little to relieve the conscience. Because of this daily torrent of opposition to the South Vietnamese, the American people would not stand for the only action that could save these people now.

The liberal media make excuses for the trouble these people now have, never assessing the blame where it belongs — on the communists to the north. It is always "that corrupt Saigon government" that is to blame. In other words, they deserve what they got for resisting the kind, generous communists' efforts to bring them peace. The reason these people are fleeing to the south, not to the north, and the fact that the communists are shelling these helpless civilians are rarely mentioned.

There is some talk of bringing South Vietnamese to this country by the thousands if their country falls. More hand-wringing. We have a lot of unemployed now and that would only add to our problems here, as we would support them. That would open the doors to millions from Southeast Asia and other countries where the people want to flee communism.

Had I been part of the monster that caused so much opposition to all effort in Vietnam and so thoroughly tied the hands of our men there, I would have a guilt complex and try to adopt some orphans.

The liberal media seem to uphold the communists in whatever they do. When the day comes that this country is run by the communists — and that seems to be the wish of the media — we will surely lose that valued freedom of the press.

The Saga Of Big John Connally

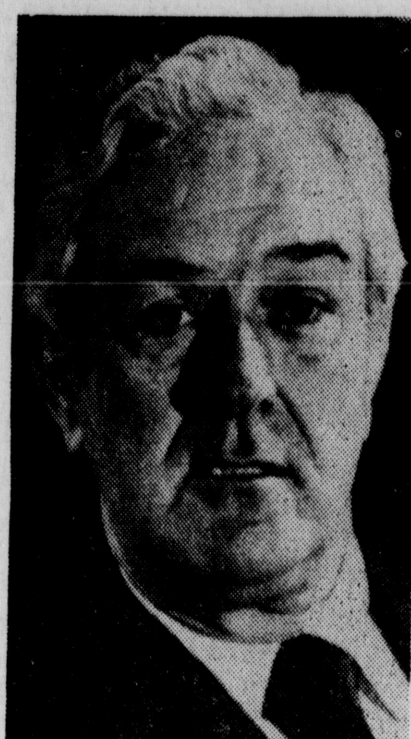

WASHINGTON — Watching Big John Connally of Texas in the dock here on charges of bribery, you have to remember him when he was governor of Texas, secretary of the Navy, a power in the Democratic Party, wounded partner of Jack Kennedy in the Dallas assassination, and finally a converted Republican secretary of the Treasury and adviser to President Nixon.

Of all the people who rose and fell with Nixon, Big John is probably the most interesting. With both parties in desperation for an exciting presidential candidate of the right age in 1976, he was the most confident, handsome, eloquent and experienced politician on the American scene, but somehow, despite everything he had going for him, he threw it all away.

Connally has always used this town like a swinging door: a rush of wind, a whirling sense of something important about to happen, a big smile, and there he is or there he goes, always in a hell of a hurry. He is almost a symbol of our present troubles: all fast ball and no control, and you have to wonder where he'd be now if he had played it easy.

His legal problems are not the most intriguing part of the story and can be left to the courts. The larger question is why this consummate politician who was supposed to know every card in the political deck played his cards so badly, misjudged his own Democratic Party, switched to the Republican Party, and managed to lose the confidence of both.

The explanation, or at least part of the explanation, is that he broke the first rule of Texas politics, which is party loyalty.

John B. Connally

He couldn't wait for events to unfold or hold his temper. Some would say he was merely impatient, others that he was an arrogant opportunist, but anyway, as seen from Washington, he was a jumper.

He first blew in here as administrative assistant to Lyndon Johnson in 1949, with all Johnson's cunning, with none of LBJ's insecurity, and all of Johnson's ambition, but he chucked it after a few months and went home to prove himself in Texas, which is to say, to make money.

A few million dollars later, he suddenly reappeared again through the swinging door as Kennedy's secretary of the Navy, but even before he had figured out his way around the Pentagon, he resigned to run for governor of Texas. Even his enemies, who are not scarce, agree he was a good governor.

But he fussed with Johnson and Humphrey at the 1968 Democratic convention, and finally broke with his party, campaigned against McGovern and for Nixon in 1972, and thought Nixon could make him vice president and maybe even president after the resignation of Spiro Agnew.

If Connally had stuck with his party in 1968, or so many leading Democrats believe, Humphrey might have edged out Nixon, but when he switched to the Republicans and campaigned for Nixon in 1972 against McGovern, he infuriated the Democrats and bet everything on Nixon, who destroyed him in the end.

"If" is the shortest and saddest word in the political dictionary. Connally's judgment about the Democratic move to the left proved to be right. If he had opposed McGovern but stuck to his party, he might now be in a better position than anybody else to win the Democratic nomination in 1976 and the presidency.

He is not, of course, unique, but merely a symbol of the irony of political life. All the leading figures on the Washington stage these days find themselves in a strange and unexpected situation. Not so long ago, Gerald Ford did not expect to be lecturing the Congress as president or presiding over the ultimate tragedy of Vietnam.

Nelson Rockefeller, until recently, never imagined he would be presiding over the Senate as Vice President — a job he rejected for 20 years. And Henry Kissinger, while he longed to be secretary of state didn't think if he made it that he would be abandoned and condemned by many of the colleagues he most admired in the Universities.

But Connally is different in an important way. He might have made it all the way to the White House, but he was pinched for political speeding, and had to turn to Edward Bennett Williams, the most hated Democrat on Nixon's "enemies list", to defend him in the courts.

All this would be funny if it weren't so sad. If Connally had hired Ed Williams to be his political campaign manager for the presidency instead of his defense lawyer, he might have made it. The candidates who have stayed the course are not the men of Connally's age, but the old geezers in their 60's — Ford, Rockefeller, and Reagan, on the Republican side, and Humphrey, Muskie, and Jackson on the Democratic side — admirable but not an inspiring lot.

There are younger men on the side who have a chance, for the country is obviously longing for something new — among them Howard Baker of Tennessee, Mo Udall of Arizona and a few young governors — but Connally probably had a better chance than most of them but he blew it.

America, we are told, is a nation of laws and not of men or women, but the accidents of personality and character often make a big difference, and Connally is only the latest illustration of the point.

Echo With A Grand Rapids Accent

President Ford was an amalgam of voices and thoughts past and present in his address to the Congress this week.

The challenging rhetoric of John Kennedy with a Grand Rapids accent; the sometimes belligerent, sometimes conciliatory rhetoric of Richard Nixon with a Grand Rapids accent and — it almost seemed like — a German accent with a Grand Rapids accent.

What the expansive speech, longwinded by American presidential standards, amounted to was a sweeping rehash of old American foreign policy, some good, some bad policy, but nothing new.

And the essence of it was that we can buy back our self respect and the confidence of our allies for $722 million.

The President has obviously gone slumming and hunted for bargain self respect and confidence in the lesser shops.

If confidence of our allies in our commitment is the issue, in Ford's terms, then nothing short of the permanent salvation of the Thieu government and the eternal division of North and South Vietnam will be the only reassurances and that will cost more than $722 million in military aid to South Vietnam. It will mean American sentry duty into the next century. We doubt, however, that confidence in America has been lost to any dangerous degree.

If self respect is the issue, then we better resolve to leave some loose thread alone and be strong enough to admit error, pull back and re-evaluate where our true interests lie and what we are capable of doing. By admitting error we can regain self respect.

It does not look as if the Congress will go along with another three-quarters of a billion dollars and we can't blame Congress for not wanting to throw good money after bad. That's a lot of money to throw away — which we will be doing — only to make us feel a little less guilty.

We can't blame the bipartisan spokesmen in Congress for wanting to be careful in tampering with the war powers act; in "clarifying," as the President said, executive power to act in emergency conditions with regard to protecting American nationals and pro-American Vietnamese.

There should be no legislative changes which would allow for the possibility of grand scale re-involvement based on a narrow pretext. No chance to build long tunnels at the ends of which there is no light.

Evacuate the Americans — that can accelerate now. Provide humanitarian aid as it can be used. Insist on major power agreement for support for unhindered evacuation of those South Vietnamese who want to leave. That can be accomplished if the Soviet Union believes in detente and the old, shopworn but still valid concept of peaceful coexistence.

But save us the agony of another Vietnam war. The people decided long ago they didn't want it.

...And Something He Didn't Say

The president got a rousing response to his support of the CIA in his speech. He made the agency sound as wholesome as the Boy Scouts and more necessary than sex.

Truthfully, no one really wants to argue that intelligence gathering has no place in the modern world. It does. Few responsible people are doubting the "legitimate" missions of agencies such as the CIA, aimed at gathering external data.

What is needed, though, is a review of the intelligence gathering function with an eye toward the elimination of duplication and rivalry. Better congressional oversight of the intelligence function is also a goal of the current investigations, and Ford agrees with that and said so in his Thursday speech.

What he neglected to mention, and the mention of it would have made him so much more credible, is the problem of snooping on private citizens for political reasons.

This is what got the CIA into trouble in the first place, not the Russian submarine salvage operation.

We had a president — actually, more than one — who used the CIA and the FBI in almost as crude a fashion as Stalin used Beria. Most Americans don't want the CIA and the FBI or other intelligence agencies following people around because they go to political meetings or speak their minds.

It was the fear that the American president was more and more inclined to use the agencies as his own private armies or political goon squads which prompted the investigations.

Ford was monstrously remiss in failing in his speech to clearly state his opposition to political abuse of the intelligence establishment.

Tax Politics

WASHINGTON — A thought for income tax time. Of late, the President and others have been warning us of the appalling growth of the public sector. Federal, state and local government outlays, now nearly 40% of the Gross National Product, may soon rise to 50%. One way or another, our taxes must rise with it. Federal income taxes may be cut, but Social Security levies and state taxes continue to go up.

Alas, critical political rhetoric is cheap — cheaper even than the shrinking dollars with which we pay our April tax bills. But in the event that our national leaders care to backstop routine oratory with actual legislation to stop the endlessly rising tax escalator, here are three suggestions:

First, limit the proportion of national (or state) income that can be taken by government in taxes. In other words, if we really are threatened by a trend that threatens to channel 50% of our Gross National Product or national income through official hands, then why not adopt legal limitations? Most important, we might prohibit the federal government from levying (except in war) taxes in excess of 30% of the GNP. Next, states could be barred from taking in taxes more than, say, eight per cent of their individual "State Products." Each state would be allowed to set its own level. Municipalities would also set limitations. As a result, the various jurisdictions would face a reality they do not face today — ceiling beyond which they cannot levy, dispense and fritter away.

Back in 1973, then-Governor Ronald Reagan tried to put such a limitation into the California State Constitution, but his proposal — called Proposition 1 — received only 45% support in a voter referendum. In part, Proposition 1 ran afoul of arguments that the state tax limitations would only have shifted the local government services burden to local property taxes. But the idea may still work with better coordination and division of burdens between jurisdictions.

Secondly, we ought to borrow the Canadian federal government's system of indexed income taxation. When inflation pushes Canadian family earnings up, their tax obligation is adjusted to reflect real, not inflated income. As a result, Canadian officials do not have the same slapdash attitude towards inflation. They do not get higher revenues from it. In the United States, of course, inflation carries no tax adjustment but pushes families into higher brackets. Mounting federal revenues are an American bureaucrat's delight.

A third idea: Oblige the Internal Revenue Service to provide each taxpayer with a detailed two- or three-page breakdown of where his or her money is going. Back in 1968, Senator Hubert Humphrey suggested that a simple booklet be sent out with each tax form indicating what proportion of every tax dollar goes for national defense, police services, government administration, education programs, and the like. However, this idea turned out to be a hot potato. California TV Commentator Lowell Ponte has carried democratization a step further by proposing that when Americans pay their taxes, they be given full budget information and then be allowed to vote on federal spending priorities. While this idea is a bit far-fetched, it is cheering merely to think of the panic its initiation would trigger in the grey-green bureaucratic rabbit warrens of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Wants Officers' Cars Marked

In reading the April 9 Star, I noticed a request from Lancaster County Sheriff Karnopp. Sheriff Karnopp has requested and proposed to the County Board a purchase of 15 new "unmarked" cars for his deputies.

Why the request for unmarked cars? Could Sheriff Karnopp be trying to save us money by saving on paint to mark the cars? Could it be they don't want people to know who they are? Or where they are?

A good reason for having marked cars is that the public can identify our peace officers when THEY are in need. The cars double for errands (serving papers, etc.) while also being used to stop traffic violators.

If we must spend the $51,000 on 15 new cars for the Lancaster sheriff's department, let's have them marked.

Suspicious Of Drinkers And Bar Owners 'Not True'

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Many local bar owners and drinkers alike just "know" the police are "out there" waiting for them. Not true, say the police.

And not true, says James Bruckner, special investigator for the City Council who issued his report on the Police Department's drunk driving procedures Friday.

Many bar owners and drinkers alike just "know" that cops "stake out" the taverns, mark customers' cars with fluorescent paint and keep little notebooks containing license plate numbers.

Not true, say the police.

And not true, says Bruckner, who conducted extensive interviews with some 200 citizens and police and whose special assistant, Bill Blake, trailed police officers and staked out bars to observe police procedures.

Many bar owners and drinkers alike just "know" that Lincolinites are drinking at home more to avoid being picked up by the cops and that business is down as a result.

Not true, say the police.

And not true, says Bruckner, who noted that liquor consumption increased 5%, outpacing population growth during 1973-74. And, contrary to charges, Lincoln's convention business has picked up, from 621 in 1973 to 969 in 1974.

The evidence concludes that Lincoln police just aren't the bad guys they're made out to be, Bruckner says.

Compared to three other cities which also cater to conventioners, Bruckner said Lincoln's Alcohol Safety Action Program (ASAP) has a lower per capita arrest rate for DWI than Phoenix, Tampa and Kansas City.

In Lincoln, 16 out of every 1,000 licensed drivers were arrested for DWI in 1973.

In Phoenix, the figure was 19, in Tampa the figure was 28 and in Kansas City the figure was 20 out of every 1,000 licensed drivers.

Bruckner speculates that one reason the rumors began spreading about the operation of Lincoln's ASAP project is due to the ASAP policy calling for aggressive DWI enforcement.

But, he cautions, aggressive enforcement should not be characterized as harassment. Bruckner believes that if the department were, in fact, harassing Lincolinites, the percentage of those arrested for DWI would be much higher than statistics indicate.

Bruckner said there is no evidence which shows police mark cars, rumors to the contrary.

But, for those out there who insist on believing it, Bruckner suggests they consider the "ludicrous situation" which would result if police marked bumpers with fluorescent paint. Eventually, most cars in the city would be marked, he says. And then, he asks, how would the police know which cars to follow?

And while he says there's no evidence to indicate police stake out local lounges, he noted that the police do patrol those areas with the highest accident rate.

Those areas include: N. 27th, Cornhusker Hwy., portions of northeast Lincoln and Hwy. 2. Coincidentally, he said, those areas just happen to have the highest concentration of bars and DWI arrests.

Selective enforcement, as it's called, is a common police procedure among law enforcement agencies around the country, Bruckner reports.

Bruckner also said it's not necessary for officers to keep lists of car licenses parked in bar parking lots since the potentially drunk driver usually gives police all the signs they need to make a legitimate stop and subsequent arrest.

Ya Gotta Drink A Lot To Get Drunk

You have to drink a whole of a lot to get legally drunk, or so says attorney James Bruckner who bent his elbow a few times — in the interest of science, of course.

Bruckner says most people think all they have to do is down two or three beers to obtain a blood level reading of .10, the legal limit for intoxication in Nebraska.

Not so, he says.

Both Bruckner and his assistant, law student Bill Blake imbibed.

Blake said he drank six ounces of 80-proof vodka in 45 minutes. Twenty minutes later he tested .081 — under the legal limit, even though Blake says he believes he was too drunk to drive.

Bruckner also belted down two vodka martinis (four ounces) in a one-hour period and ate a small steak sandwich. About 45 minutes later he took the pre-test, administered by a police officer. He passed that one. Then he took the gas chromatograph test and tested .003.

The next day, Bruckner asked several attorney friends what they thought his test results should be. Their estimates ranged from .05 to .08, indicating, Bruckner concluded, that even the more informed citizen is inclined to estimate high.

So, as Bruckner told the City Council last week, "I can attest you can have a pretty good time and still pass the test."

Bruckner Police Report Is Received Favorably

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

The comments were few but favorable Friday night as city officials got their first glance at a report detailing the Police Department's handling of drunk driving arrests.

The two councilmen who had time to read the report, prepared by attorney James Bruckner, both agreed that the conclusions sustained their own belief in the excellence of Lincoln's police force.

The report supports the information that Councilman Steve Cook received in personal telephone calls — that the problem is not one of general police harassment but of a few overzealous officers.

Cook said he was surprised by the statistics showing that Lincoln has a lower DWI arrest rate than many other cities with similar programs.

Councilman Richard Baker found the report recommendations "constructive."

"I'm sure the command officers will review and welcome the suggestions," said Baker, adding that the Police Department will probably implement some recommendations within the next month.

The council will become involved only if the police feel that some recommendations are not valid, Baker said. Then the council will have to decide if "we want to believe the report," Baker said.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf, who was up to page 10 of the 100-plus-page report late Friday afternoon, did not want to comment saying, "I'll probably have to sleep on it."

Police officials were also declining comment Friday.

Roger V. Dickeson, whose memos to the city and the news media sparked the investigation, said he was "pleased" with the report suggestions that arrested persons be treated "humanely and not be held incommunicado or indiscriminately."

But he indicated he may not be finished with the DWI arrest topic just yet.

A team of University of Nebraska-Lincoln Daily Nebraskan reporters has turned up evidence that cars are marked by police and that there is a license plate "watch list" of cars parked in bar parking lots, according to Dickeson.

Dickeson said he will read the report and review the efforts of the Daily Nebraskan reporters.

"If I think there is a disparity of fact, I will bring it to Her Honors attention after she is elected mayor," said Dickeson, an obvious supporter of mayoral candidate Helen Boosals.

No DWI Arrest Quota Found For Lincoln Policemen

Contrary to the charges of several former policemen, the Lincoln Police Department does not have a policy requiring officers to arrest a specified number of people for drunk driving.

Attorney Jamee Bruckner investigated those quota system charges as a part of his probe into the department's overall handling of driving while intoxicated (DWI) arrests.

Because of the "inherent dangers" of such a system, Bruckner tried to determine whether advancement within the department was directly related to the number of arrests made by an officer, whether there is any policy which causes competition for arrests and whether any officers set their own quotas.

Commanding officers vehemently deny there is such a system, he said.

He said there's no evidence promotions are handed out on that basis since promotions are based on two exams administered by the city personnel office. Command officers make the promotions from that list.

But, an activity list on each patrolman has been posted in the police assembly room. Officers were ranked by the number of arrests.

The policy of posting the list did create competition among some of the patrolmen, he concluded, and thereby created the potential for "bad arrests."

He also discovered that several officers created their own personal quotas, which he said, had the potential to lead to bad arrests and should be discouraged.

Since his investigation began in January, Bruckner noted the list has been taken down. He says it should stay down.

Council Examination Urged In Administering Antabuse

The administration of the drug antabuse should be examined by city fathers, attorney James Bruckner said.

Bruckner said several witnesses testifying on the police's handling of drunk drivers offered "credible, in-depth criticism" of the Lincoln Municipal Court probation system and the practice of administering antabuse, or disulfiram.

Since the City Council restricted the scope of the investigation to the operation of the police, Bruckner did not investigate into further charges of abuse.

Nevertheless, Bruckner concluded from information he received that the problem drinker has difficulty getting probation, and therefore, "help." But, he said, the non-problem or social drinker, is placed on probation with all the "embellishments."

Those embellishments include attending Alcoholic Anonymous meetings, lectures, and use of antabuse.

Phoenix, whose ASAP program Bruckner lauded in his report, does not dispense antabuse.

Barajas Pleads Innocent

Gering (AP) — Arturo Barajas Jr. pleaded innocent in Scottsbluff District Court Friday to first-degree murder charges.

The 21-year-old Barajas, formerly of Scottsbluff, was arrested March 11 in El Paso, Tex., by the Border Patrol Police there and charged with the March 2 shooting death of 21-year-old Leo Mousseaux Jr.

A jury trial was scheduled to begin July 21.

Scottsbluff District Judge Ted R. Feidler overruled a motion by Public Defender James Hansen that charges against Barajas be dismissed because the court is without jurisdiction since a grand jury indictment has not been handed down against him.

Hansen said the 5th Amendment provides that no person shall be held to answer for a capital or an infamous crime unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury. The public defender further said to proceed on the information filed by County Atty. Robert Hippe would "deprive the defendant of due process of law and deny the defendant of equal protection of laws under the U.S. Constitution."

Hippe agreed with Hansen's interpretation of the 5th Amendment, but said that the amendment is for federal court cases and the latest U.S. Supreme Court ruling held that the grand jury provision is not applicable to state proceedings.

Engineers' Role In Food Needs Said Vital

Engineers will play a vital role in meeting the world's food needs, student engineers at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln learned Friday.

That was the message of Talcott W. Edminster, administrator of the Agricultural Research Service, who spoke at the opening convocation of Engineer Week.

"It is engineers who will bridge the gap between a plan for world food production and its final implementation," Edminster told his audience.

They will have to use a "mixed bag of old and new methods of technology" to feed a world population that will double by the year 2000, he said.

Edminster stressed that the technology will have to be simple in some parts of the world, relying heavily on man and animal power.

Agricultural technology must be "location specific," he reminded his listeners.

Edminster directed himself to practical and innovative engineering. He feels an engineer should be able to lay out a terrace with a string and a rubber hose or compact a reservoir with sheep, goats and water buffalo.

He's looking for engineers who "can still do square root the long way" when their electronic calculators break down.

Work experience is an important guideline for effective engineering, Edminster added.

Engineers must also have ingenuity, imagination and patience when passing on their technical skills to others.

"FOR I THE LORD THY GOD AM A JEALOUS GOD, VISITING THE INIQUITY OF THE FATHERS UPON THE CHILDREN UNTO THE THIRD AND FOURTH GENERATION OF THEM THAT HATE ME AND SHOWING MERCY UNTO THOUSANDS OF THEM THAT LOVE ME, AND KEEP MY COMMANDMENTS." Quote from 2nd Commandment Exodus 20:5-6 (If you are one of those who belong to a Protestant Christian Church, and yet rail at God here revealed, may we suggest that you make haste and delay not to have your name rubbed off its rolls — hoping it may be a "lengthening of your tranquility".)

History makes some singular developments in respect to the retributive justice of God. Nations, communities, families, individuals, furnish fearful illustrations that "THE WICKED IS SNALED IN THE WORK OF HIS OWN HAND", AND THAT "THE WAY OF THE TRANSGRESSOR IS HARD!" Wrong doing, oppression, crime, are by no means reserved only for a future retribution. They draw after them an almost certain retribution in this world — "THERE IS NO PEACE TO THE WICKED, SAITH MY GOD!" He may seem to prosper — riches may increase — he may revel in pleasure, and shine in honors, and seem to have all that heart can wish; yet there is a cankerworm somewhere gnawing at the very vitals of happiness — a blight somewhere upon all that he possesses! History bears at least an incidental yet decisive testimony on this point!

"Pharaoh defied the God of Heaven and raised his hand to oppress the chosen people, and he perished miserably amid the ruins of his own kingdom. Egypt never recovered from the shock of Pharaoh's sin, but since has been "the basest of Kingdoms!"

Adonibese, who conquered 70 kings, and having cut off their thumbs and big toes, made them eat under his table, is at length conquered by the invading Israelites, who in turn cut off his thumbs and his toes. He acknowledged the retributive justice of the act when he said: "As I have done, so God has requited me!"

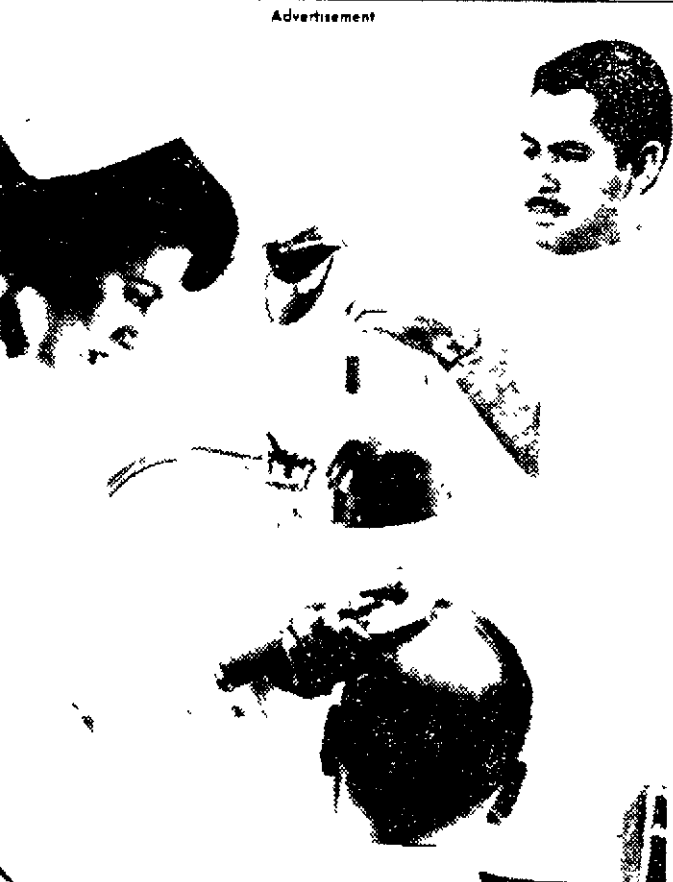

Examples crowd upon us from every quarter; every neighborhood furnishes them! Haman was hung on the gallows he built for Mordecai, dogs ate the carcass of Queen Jezebel, and licked up the blood of her husband, King Ahab. The Herods furnish fearful examples!

But consider Pontius Pilate: Many of us quote his name every Sunday in public worship: "SUFFERED UNDER PONTIUS PILATE!" Pilate, vacillating between the monitions of conscience and a miserable time serving policy, delivered up Jesus to be crucified. He believed Him to be innocent; yet that his own loyalty to Caesar might not be suspected, he did violence to his own conscience and condemned the innocent. He must secure his friendship to Caesar, though it be at the expense of the most appalling crime. But how miserably he failed! And there was in the retribution which followed a striking fitness to the punishment of the crime. He hesitated at nothing to please his imperial master at Rome. Yet but two years afterward he was banished by the same emperor into a distant province, where, in disgrace and abandonment and with a burden on his conscience, which was the burning steel, he put an end to an existence which was too wretched to be borne!

"Be sure your sin will find you out!"

"He that confesseth and forsaketh his sin shall find mercy."

Suspicious Of Drinkers And Bar Owners 'Not True'

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Many local bar owners and drinkers alike just "know" the police are "out there" waiting for them. Not true, say the police.

Not true, says James Bruckner, special investigator for the City Council who issued his report on the Police Department's drunk driving procedures Friday.

Many bar owners and drinkers alike just "know" that cops "stake out" the taverns, mark customers' cars with fluorescent paint and keep little notebooks containing license plate numbers.

Not true, say the police.

And not true, says Bruckner, who conducted extensive interviews with some 200 citizens and

police and whose special assistant, Bill Blake, trailed police officers and staked out bars to observe police procedures.

Many bar owners and drinkers alike just "know" that Lincolinites are drinking at home more to avoid being picked up by the cops and that business is down as a result.

Not true, say the police.

And not true, says Bruckner, who noted that liquor consumption increased 5%, outpacing population growth during 1973-74. And, contrary to charges, Lincoln's convention business has picked up, from 621 in 1973 to 969 in 1974.

The evidence concludes that Lincoln police just aren't the bad guys they're made out to be, Bruckner says.

Compared to three other cities which also cater to conventioners, Bruckner said Lincoln's Alcohol Safety Action Program (ASAP) has a lower per capita arrest rate for DWI than Phoenix, Tampa and Kansas City.

In Lincoln, 16 out of every 1,000 licensed drivers were arrested for DWI in 1973.

In Phoenix, the figure was 19, in Tampa the figure was 28 and in Kansas City the figure was 20 out of every 1,000 licensed drivers.

Bruckner speculates that one reason the rumors began spreading about the operation of Lincoln's ASAP project is due to the ASAP policy calling for aggressive DWI enforcement.

But, he cautions, aggressive enforcement should not be characterized as harassment. Bruckner believes that if the department were, in fact, harassing Lincolinites, the percentage of those arrested for DWI would be much higher than statistics indicate.

Bruckner said there is no evidence which shows police mark cars, rumors to the contrary.

But, for those out there who insist on believing it, Bruckner suggests they consider the "ludicrous situation" which would result if police marked bumpers with fluorescent paint. Selective enforcement, as it's called, is a common police procedure among law enforcement agencies around the country, Bruckner reports.

Bruckner also said it's not necessary for officers to keep lists of car licenses parked in bar parking lots since the potentially drunk driver usually gives police all the signs they need to make a legitimate stop and subsequent arrest.

Bruckner Urges Police To Use More Discretion

Police officers should temper their policies of jailing people arrested for public drunkenness.

The police should exercise greater discretion in those cases, allowing many of those arrested to be released to friends or family, says James Bruckner.

Bruckner, whose basic investigation centered on the department's treatment of drinking motorists, said it was difficult to pinpoint any definite policy on public intoxication.

Commanding officers say they have a flexible policy which allows the policeman on the street to use his own judgment — whether to take the person back to a hotel or to his home or bring him down to headquarters and jail.

Bruckner says he finds nothing wrong with that policy, but suggested to the City Council that the police have the authority to release juveniles and adults in certain cases.

History bears at least an incidental yet decisive testimony on this point!

"Pharaoh defied the God of Heaven and raised his hand to oppress the chosen people, and he perished miserably amid the ruins of his own kingdom. Egypt never recovered from the shock of Pharaoh's sin, but since has been "the basest of Kingdoms!"

Adonibese, who conquered 70 kings, and having cut off their thumbs and big toes, made them eat under his table, is at length conquered by the invading Israelites, who in turn cut off his thumbs and his toes. He acknowledged the retributive justice of the act when he said: "As I have done, so God has requited me!"

Examples crowd upon us from every quarter; every neighborhood furnishes them! Haman was hung on the gallows he built for Mordecai, dogs ate the carcass of Queen Jezebel, and licked up the blood of her husband, King Ahab. The Herods furnish fearful examples!

But consider Pontius Pilate: Many of us quote his name every Sunday in public worship: "SUFFERED UNDER PONTIUS PILATE!" Pilate, vacillating between the monitions of conscience and a miserable time serving policy, delivered up Jesus to be crucified. He believed Him to be innocent; yet that his own loyalty to Caesar might not be suspected, he did violence to his own conscience and condemned the innocent. He must secure his friendship to Caesar, though it be at the expense of the most appalling crime. But how miserably he failed! And there was in the retribution which followed a striking fitness to the punishment of the crime. He hesitated at nothing to please his imperial master at Rome. Yet but two years afterward he was banished by the same emperor into a distant province, where, in disgrace and abandonment and with a burden on his conscience, which was the burning steel, he put an end to an existence which was too wretched to be borne!"

"Be sure your sin will find you out!"

"He that confesseth and forsaketh his sin shall find mercy".

Famous Scalp Specialist Tells Truth About Saving Falling Hair

These private individual consultations will be held at the Hilton Hotel, 9th & P Sts., on Sunday, April 13, & Monday, April 14, from 1:00 to 8:30 P.M. Ask hotel clerk for Mr. J. J. Wooley. He will do the rest. Phone 475-4011.

LINCOLN, April 12 — In an interview, J. J. Wooley, nationally famous consultant for the International Hair and Scalp Specialists, Inc., said, "There are many different scalp disorders that cause most men and women to lose hair. Using common sense, a person must realize no one tonic or so-called cure-all could correct all the disorders," he explained.

Guaranteed
"International, recognizing that most people are skeptical, offers a guarantee." Wooley said. Once a person avails himself of the International treatment his skepticism immediately disappears. You will be given a written guarantee from the beginning to end on a pro-rated basis.

Hopeless Cases Discouraged
First the International consultants are quick to tell hopeless cases that they cannot be helped. But the "hopeless" cases are few. Everyone is given a complete private consultation to determine the condition of his or her scalp, and cause for their hair trouble.

Free Consultations
This consultation is very thorough and highly technical. It requires 20 to 30 minutes. There is no charge for this consultation and no appointment is necessary. After the consultation he or she is told the required length of treatment and how much it will cost. After starting treatment, a consultant will return to check client's progress.

To provide the opportunity of having normal, healthy hair to

Hopeless Cases Refused

No Cure All . . . We have no cure-all for slick, shiny baldness. International consultants will accept only clients whose hair we feel sure will respond to treatment. They cannot help individuals who are slick bald, or the majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss, called male pattern baldness, where no treatment, including the International treatment, is of any value. Therefore, International will continue their policy of refusing all hopeless cases.

There is one thing Wooley wants to be certain every man and woman knows. If hair appears to recede at the temples or a spot begins to show up on the crown of the head, there is something wrong and it should be given immediate attention.

Hair For Lifetime

"If clients follow our directions during treatment, and after they finish the course, there is no reason why they will not have hair all the rest of their lives," Wooley said. "Our firm is definitely behind this treatment; it all depends on the individual client's faithful observation of a few simple rules."

How's Your Hair?
If it worries you, just go to the Hilton Hotel, 9th & P Sts., on Sunday, April 13 & Monday, April 14, from 1:00 to 8:30 p.m. Ask for Mr. J. J. Wooley. Or phone 475-4011. No appointment necessary. Interviews are given in private with no possible embarrassment.

Dying

it's being brought out
the closet

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Marti Goodban is a bitter young woman.

She has a bone to pick with the American way of dying.

Things are getting better, she says. "It's being brought out of the closet."

Ms. Goodban, a self-described "free lance social worker," doesn't spout theory. What she has to say comes from the heart. And from experience.

Ms. Goodban watched her young husband die a slow, painful death. It took eight years.

Though a widow for nearly three years, she still needs "to bring it up again and look it all over." It helps memories, feelings get laid to rest," if only one at a time, she says.

Plopped on a straight backed chair in the dining room of the Homestead Institute for Creative Living, home for Ms. Goodban, her two young sons and others involved in the novel counseling concept, Ms. Goodban told it all — her experience with death, her bitterness, her feelings about the American way of dying.

For Ms. Goodban and countless others, mourning was a solitary process. And she resented the isolation.

People don't mourn together, she says. Mourning is hidden and, therefore, there is no opportunity to learn from others.

That is just one aspect of Americans' denial of death, she says. The denial "comes in thousands of forms," imposing a "hardship on people who are dying and people who are grieving."

For example, "people go to the hospital to die. Death is not accepted as a natural process," Ms. Goodban says.

Her husband died in the hospital, too — but she wouldn't have had it any other way, "not the way he died... It was such a violent death."

Ms. Goodban appears even younger than her 29 years. But her eyes betray her — they are lined by the sadness and pools of tears shed in mourning. Shifting in her chair and lighting another cigaret, she then retraces her experiences with death.

They were a growing family of three, Marti and Wayne Goodban and their infant son.

"We were thinking life was all peaches and cream — except there wasn't enough money to buy milk," she says.

Then came the trip to the doctor's office and the diagnosis. Her husband had Hodgkin's disease. Cancer of the lymph glands. "The young man's disease."

"We knew from day one the chances of it being terminal were good," she recalls. "It was a matter of when," not if.

They continued to live their lives, interrupted by occasional hospital visits. She had another child. Her husband set about getting his house in order.

He insisted she train for a career. Ms. Goodban enrolled in the University of Nebraska Graduate School of Social Work. Later, Ms. Goodban was to use her personal experiences to assist the school in setting up classes on death and the grief process.

Still, her husband was in and out of the hospital, always demanding a private room. "He didn't like to be around sick people. Ms. Goodban laughed as she grabbed another cigaret, the fourth in an hour.

MS. GOODBAN... a bone to pick.

The hospital visits became more frequent, numbering five in the final two years.

Center Plans Group Therapy To Help 'Acknowledge Grief'

By GRACIA McANDREW
Star Staff Writer

Dealing with grief. Acknowledging its presence. Being aware of its characteristics, its stages of development. These things will be emphasized by the new Grief Center.

Scheduled to begin operation April 15 at Westminster Presbyterian Church, the pilot program's goal is to help "people in normal grief phases," said Mary Marietta, social worker for the Lincoln-Lancaster Mental Health Center, member of the Grief Center board.

The five weekly sessions will provide group therapy for those who have suffered the loss of a loved one.

"Loved ones include not only spouses, children, parents and other relatives, but also friends," Mrs. Marietta said.

Through the short-term therapy, "we are not trying to get people totally over it (grief)," she explained, "but instead really give them on-the-spot help and an element of hope — give them a focus so they can go on living."

"We basically feel it is valuable for people to meet with other people who have experienced the same things, but are in different stages in development."

The Grief Center will make provisions for persons for whom group therapy is not the best solution, Mrs. Marietta said.

If a person cannot comfortably fit into a group therapy situation, short-term individual sessions will be arranged. Persons conducting the sessions will make home visits if participants are unable to attend.

During the five group meetings, discussions will touch on attitudes toward death and grief, the various stages of grief — anger, guilt, confusion, depression and denial — of each group participant in the grief process.

Also, selection of outside speakers — physicians, nurses, social workers, morticians, bankers — will be encouraged so that group members can gain more insight into the practical aspects of death. "We want to stress through this whole thing that grieving is normal," she said.

But that was just the beginning for Ms. Goodban. She ran up against the American death mystique.

She felt as if she were "operating in a fog," one that didn't let up for some time.

"No matter how prepared you are, it's still terribly painful," she said. The pain was more than emotional. She had physical symptoms. She slept a lot. When awake, she sat, statue-like, in the corner of the sofa.

"It was difficult to accept the fact it was over with." It was even more difficult to keep on going.

"I felt like a leper," Ms. Goodban said. "If you're grieving, people don't want to be around you... You're like a neon sign" reminding them it could happen to them.

Except for a few close friends who were her "personal crisis line," she was forced out of old relationships with young couples. She began making new friends.

Ms. Goodban became involved in the women's movement, was in on ground level planning for the Homestead Institute and Lincoln's proposed grief center.

Ms. Goodban went through all the stages — the shock reaction, a numbness during which time she didn't, couldn't, shed a tear; then the grief, when the tears wouldn't stop.

And she was angry. "I was just plain mad at Wayne for dying... at my lot in life," she recalls.

"Everyone grieves in their own way and at their own pace," she says. "People need to allow themselves to experience their feelings and admit their sadness."

To Ms. Goodban, grieving was a "definite process of letting go of him... of parts of myself that were tied up with him."

The process isn't over yet.

"In a way, I will grieve for him until I die."

Employer To Pay If Employees Lose

Chicago — Jim Miller may lose his shirt, but he expects 144 of his overweight employees to lose almost three tons of fat first.

Miller, President of Inter-matic Inc., maker of timers and heaters in Spring Grove, Ill., said concern for the health of the heavyweights among his 500 employees led him to offer $3 for every pound they lost.

He said he was surprised at the number of employees who took him up on his offer. Miller estimated that the year-long diet could cost him $17,000.

"I'm liable to be out of work in a year," he said. The company's liable to be owned by a lot of slender employees."

The diet derby will be based on weight lost over a full year to discourage fad diets, he said. "Anybody can lose in a couple of weeks on some crash diet and then gain it back again."

We don't want any kooky diets. Overweight is a disease that kills. We're trying to encourage a change in life-style that will keep the weight down."

Diet derby entrants must be at least 15 pounds overweight by insurance tables, Miller said.

Seven contestants were more than 100 pounds overweight each. Three weighed in at more than 300 pounds.

The big winner could be Johnny Palka, 25, a truck-lift operator who packs 360 pounds on his 6 foot frame.

Palka could make $525, said Miller, who thinks Palka will collect. "His father worked for us and was very heavy," Miller said. "He died at 50, Johnny wants to live to see his 3-year-old daughter married."

Derby mania has swept the plant, Miller said. There was an immediate demand for diet plates in the cafeteria and the posting of calorie counts per serving.

Two contestants were found to have such high blood pressure they were immediately sent to their doctors, he said.

So far there have been no complaints of discrimination from the skinnies on the work force, Miller reported. "But you know, no-body is skinny by insurance tables," he added.

Except perhaps Miller, who is 6 foot 2 inches and weighs 170 pounds. He is not paying himself to lose.

It is said that the first thing a beginner learns is when to finesse, and that the last thing he learns is when not to finesse. There is more truth than poetry in this observation, and today's deal is a striking illustration of the principle.

West led the ace of hearts, felling the king, then shifted to the ace and another diamond. Declarer rose with the king, ruffed a heart and played a trump, planning to finesse. When West produced the king, forcing the ace, declarer continued with the queen, West showing out.

Faced with a sure trump loser, South now had to escape a club loser to make the contract. It would seem normal for declarer to lead a club at this point and finesse the jack to go down one, but actually South did much better than that.

He did lead a club, but went up with the ace, continued with the king, and easily made the contract when he caught the queen. The only tricks South lost were a spade, a heart and a diamond.

Declarer displayed exceptionally good judgment in rejecting the club finesse. He was aware from the bidding that West had at least ten cards in the red suits and that he therefore could not have more than two clubs.

Finessing the jack of clubs consequently could not gain a trick, for even if the finesse succeeded because East had the queen, East would still have a club trick coming with a holding of four or more to the queen. A further reason for rejecting the finesse was the high probability that West had the queen of clubs as part of his bidding values.

Offer Clergymen Fee For Special Service

DEAR ABBY: I wish people who ask ministers to conduct funerals and wedding knew what the word "honorarium" means

(a payment to a professional for services for which no fee is set or legally obtainable.) Some people feel it is so crude to ask a minister: "How much do I owe you," that they just let the matter go and do nothing about it at all.

My husband is a minister (please don't say where), and within the last year, he was called to officiate at the funeral services of both an elderly man and his wife, who lived 35 miles away. He was given no fee.

Abby, can you imagine anyone writing the following note to an attorney? "Thank you, Mr. Jones, for your legal services. Mother and Dad would have wanted you to come down to handle these legal services for us at this trying time."

Or the minister to his barber: "Thank you, Mr. Smith, for cutting my hair at this time. I would not want to embarrass the family by needing a haircut." Or: "Thank you, Mr. Brown, for the gasoline, oil and car wash. I wouldn't want to run out of gas on my way to a funeral or show up with a dirty car." Or: "Thank you, Mr. White, for cleaning and pressing my suit. I would not want to embarrass the family at this time by appearing unkempt."

In order to make ends meet, my husband moonlights and had to pay a substitute for his second job so he could make these two funerals.

DEAR INDIGNANT: Perhaps because there is no set fee for conducting funerals and weddings, some folks feel that there is no fee at all. Also, some clergymen have written to tell me that they consider such services a part of their job, and they're insulted when they are offered money for doing the work of the Lord. I say: "Offer anyway. The offended clergyman can always refuse."

"We want to stress through this whole thing that grieving is normal," she said.

The sessions are open to the public. However, each person must go through a screening process to determine whether or not he or she fits into the group sessions or should have more extensive counseling.

"We will make an assessment of each person's situation through an interview to see how he fits in," she pointed out. If necessary, the person will be referred to other local agencies, such as the Lincoln-Lancaster Mental Health Center, Family Services, Catholic Social Services, Lutheran Family and Social Service, the psychological counseling service at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln or a psychotherapist in private practice.

"There will be a fee at the Grief Center, but it will be on a sliding scale (based on each person's ability to pay)," she added. "We won't turn anyone away."

In its first year, the Grief Center will operate on a budget of $5,254. Its board has submitted a proposal to Lincoln Community Services for a United Fund allocation of $3,254 for next year.

to ask a minister: "How much do I owe you," that they just let the matter go and do nothing about it at all.

My husband is a minister (please don't say where), and within the last year, he was called to officiate at the funeral services of both an elderly man and his wife, who lived 35 miles away. He was given no fee.

Abby, can you imagine anyone writing the following note to an attorney? "Thank you, Mr. Jones, for your legal services. Mother and Dad would have wanted you to come down to handle these legal services for us at this trying time."

Or the minister to his barber: "Thank you, Mr. Smith, for cutting my hair at this time. I would not want to embarrass the family by needing a haircut." Or: "Thank you, Mr. Brown, for the gasoline, oil and car wash. I wouldn't want to run out of gas on my way to a funeral or show up with a dirty car." Or: "Thank you, Mr. White, for cleaning and pressing my suit. I would not want to embarrass the family at this time by appearing unkempt."

In order to make ends meet, my husband moonlights and had to pay a substitute for his second job so he could make these two funerals.

DEAR INDIGNANT: Perhaps because there is no set fee for conducting funerals and weddings, some folks feel that there is no fee at all. Also, some clergymen have written to tell me that they consider such services a part of their job, and they're insulted when they are offered money for doing the work of the Lord.

dear

I say: "Offer anyway. The offended clergyman can always refuse."

Exon Hits Dike Resolution

By United Press International
The Legislature was off base when it passed a resolution Thursday asking the governor to step in to protect private property along the Platte River, according to Gov. J. J. Exon.

"The Legislature went way off base without consulting me or the attorney general," Exon said in response to the resolution, which asks that he use emergency fund money to shore up a dike protecting homes in Sarpy County's Hanson Lake area.

"It would be nice for lawmakers to look at the law before they act," the governor said, adding he was expecting a formal opinion from the attorney general to the effect that emergency fund money can't legally be used the way the lawmakers want.

Exon said the law governing use of the emergency fund says it can be used for "extreme climatic phenomena and civil disturbances." The governor said those conditions do not exist at Hanson Lake.

The law also allows the governor to use the fund when a catastrophe cannot be handled by the financial resources of local government. Exon said as yet Sarpy County has spent no money on the dike.

Exon also said he viewed the resolution passed by the Legislature at the request of Springfield Sen. Orval Keyes as potentially dangerous if it was legal.

"The Legislature had best take a look at the precedent it is setting by this hasty and ill conceived resolution," the governor said. "We could end up maintaining all the dikes up and down the Platte River."

Meanwhile, U.S. Sen. Carl Curtis' office reports the Nebraska Republican was working with Sarpy County officials in an attempt to encourage the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to assist in flood protection efforts.

Unicameral Speaker J. W. Burbach of Crofton said he learned from discussions with Curtis the corps does have money for such projects.

Breadwinners' Jobs Emphasized

By United Press International
State Labor Commissioner Gerald Chizek said Friday preliminary plans for the Public Service Job Program in the coming fiscal year, an effort to ease nationwide unemployment problems, call for emphasis on getting heads of households to work.

The labor commissioner said the primary thrust to date has simply been to get jobs for those who have been unemployed for 30 days or more. That, Chizek said, has been a relatively easy task because there are "quite a few out there" who haven't worked for 30 days.

The new fiscal year begins

July 1.

The March unemployment figures for Nebraska won't be available until next week. But in February, some 44,000 were out of work in the state. Chizek, however, said he thinks the unemployment picture is about to the point of stabilizing.

The commissioner also said that while the future emphasis would be on heads of households, that doesn't mean other areas, particularly jobs for youth, would be ignored.

"This summer we're going to have some summer youth programs," Chizek said, adding to do otherwise might keep a number of students from going back to school in the fall.

Another change from current policies on administering the state's $12 million Public Service Job Program, the commissioner said, might come in the area of how jobs are distributed. He said instead of creating one, two or three jobs in an area, the emphasis being considered would be towards crews of eight or more.

The idea, Chizek said, would be to create maintenance teams for such things as state and local parks.

In terms of how the money made available to the state has been put to use, Chizek's staff reported there are now 301 jobs, of which 240 have been filled. Some of those jobs have just been created within the last few days, the staff said, accounting for the openings.

Based on current appropriations, the staff said the 301 job slots would appear to be about the maximum.

For the purposes of administering the program, the state has been divided into three areas.

Except for Douglas and Sarpy Counties and the Lincoln area, the State Labor Department is responsible for the entire state.

The mayors of Lincoln and Omaha will administer the job program in those areas.

Quite A Girl!

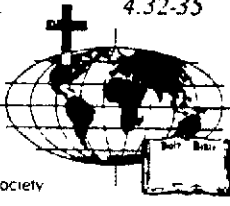

Aunt Sara looks about as stern as they come, doesn't she? As they used to say, "butter wouldn't melt in her mouth." I don't remember the occasion of this picture, since I was the baby. But I do remember Great Aunt Sara very vividly and she was quite a girl!

She was what they call a "pillar of the church." She must have baked an astronomical number of chick-pies for church suppers and served on almost every committee at one time or another. You might say she was pious, a word we don't usually care for. What I mean is that she revered her God and loved Him.

She also had a tremendous sense of humor. I remember she used to tell the funniest stories.

The point is this. So often people mistake religious fervor for a certain "holier than thou" attitude. They don't believe that humor and religion go together. But Aunt Sara proved them wrong. The Church encompasses all of life—humor and wit—as well as love and compassion . . . and so much more! You can easily find out for yourself.

Quite A Girl!

Aunt Sara looks about as stern as they come, doesn't she? As they used to say, "butter wouldn't melt in her mouth." I don't remember the occasion of this picture, since I was the baby. But I do remember Great Aunt Sara very vividly and she was quite a girl!

She was what they call a "pillar of the church." She must have baked an astronomical number of chick-pies for church suppers and served on almost every committee at one time or another. You might say she was pious, a word we don't usually care for. What I mean is that she revered her God and loved Him.

She also had a tremendous sense of humor. I remember she used to tell the funniest stories.

The point is this. So often people mistake religious fervor for a certain "holier than thou" attitude. They don't believe that humor and religion go together. But Aunt Sara proved them wrong. The Church encompasses all of life—humor and wit—as well as love and compassion . . . and so much more! You can easily find out for yourself.

Funds Available For Soil, Water Conservation

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., announced Friday nearly $5 million in federal funds has been made available for soil and water conservation work in the state on a matching basis.

Thone said the total of $4,712,767 includes $3,896,000 appropriated for 1975 and $816,767 carried over from 1974. The money will be available, he added, only for work completed during this calendar year.

"These funds will give farmers incentive for investing their own money in keeping their rich Nebraska soil in place and obtaining the most use possible of our water," Thone said.

Late Rally Caps Year's Best Week

New York (AP) — The stock market put a final flourish on its best week of the year Friday with a late-afternoon upsurge that carried the Dow Jones industrial average to an eight-month high. Analysts said investors, heartened by new confidence on the interest rate outlook, seemed to be increasingly optimistic over the chances for an economic recovery in the months ahead.

The Dow Average of 30 blue chips, virtually unchanged going into the final two hours of the session, recorded an 8.21 gain to 789.50, its highest close since it finished at 797.56 last Aug. 7.

After four straight substantial gains, the Dow finished the week with a 42.24 advance—its largest weekly rise since Oct. 711, when it set a record with a 73-61-point spurt.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index climbed 41 to 84.18 in Friday's activity, and the New York Stock Exchange composite index was up .25 at 44.61. Gainers outnumbered losers by about an 8-5 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board turnover, slow in the early going, picked up sharply in the last two hours and wound up at 20.16 million shares, compared with 24.99 million Thursday.

Analysts viewed the market's early sluggishness as simply a breathing spell after the aggregate gain of more than 30 points in the Dow over the two previous sessions.

They said an after-lunch stirring in mobile home issues and basic industry stocks such as the steels and chemicals seemed to touch off an end-of-the-week rush to buy stocks generally.

The market atmosphere continued to benefit from the mid-week rally in the bond market, even though bonds were sluggish and mostly lower during Friday's session.

Thirteen-week Treasury bills—a widely followed component of the short term money market—meanwhile were quoted below 5.6 per cent at mid-afternoon as they continued their descent from above 6 several days ago.

In the mobile-home group, Skyline rose 2 1/2 to 21 1/2; Fleetwood Enterprises gained 2 1/2 to 14 1/2; Redman Industries added 7/8 to 4 and Champion Home Builders, the American Stock Exchange volume leader, was up 3/4 to 4 1/4.

One analyst said the stocks seemed to have attracted investors shopping for issues which had not yet had a substantial runup in the rally of the last four months.

Among the chemicals and steels, Du Pont rose 3/4, Monsanto 2 1/2, U.S. Steel 1 1/2 and Bethlehem Steel 3/4.

Occidental Petroleum, the NYSE's most active issue, rose 1/2 to 15 1/2 in trading that included a series of medium-sized blocks.

In the over-the-counter market, the NASDAQ composite index closed at 76.31, up .55.

Paperwork Could Delay Loans On Blizzard Loss

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The head of the Farmers Home Administration in Nebraska is concerned that there may be delays in getting funds to farmers who suffered severe losses in the Panhandle area blizzards.

"People don't understand that it takes some time to get these procedures completed before we can begin making loans. Our offices are really loaded with work now and there is a freeze on additional personnel but we will do our best," said Kenneth Bowen, head of the FHA in Nebraska.

The loans will be available to farmers in those counties that have been declared a disaster area by the U.S. secretary of Agriculture. Farmers with losses in other counties must use local credit agencies or the standard FHA loan.

County Group Must Meet
The first step is a meeting of the county disaster board which receives a report from the local FHA supervisor on the need for credit and the size of the disaster. Forms are then prepared and submitted to the county board of supervisors.

The county board then prepares a document asking that the county be declared a disaster area, forwarding papers including statements by local lenders that there is a need for additional credit in the county. This is a form letter that is quite specific.

These documents then go the governor who endorses them and forwards them to the U.S. secretary of agriculture who approves the disaster declaration and authorizes the loans.

30 Days Needed
"If everything goes right we usually can get to this point in 30 days, after which we can begin to accept loan applications," Bowen explained.

Bowen said the speed with which loans could be issued would depend on the work load in the county and the number of FHA staff people available to work on them.

Loans are made at 5% interest for up to the total value of the dead livestock and damaged property on each farm in the designated counties.

ASCS Plan Separate
There is a separate program operated by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

Paul Sindt, head of ASCS in Nebraska, advised farmers to contact their county offices immediately about crop losses. "The fields must be checked by the ASCS people before they are torn up or pastured to determine the exact extent of the loss," he said.

State Blizzard Losses More Than $10 Million

The Nebraska State USDA emergency board Friday released a report revealing the combined blizzard related losses of livestock soil, crops and other related losses in western Nebraska amounted to $10,431,000.

Of the total the livestock losses amounted to $5,088,000. Soil and crop losses were pegged at $5,343,000.

These losses occurred in the western third of the state due to the devastating blizzard on March 27 and 28.

This dollar amount includes livestock losses caused by pneumonia, scours, lung diseases and other weakened conditions that occurred during and since the blizzard.

Losses of livestock are expected to continue.

The information for the report was gathered by the county USDA emergency boards and submitted by county ASCS offices and SCS service offices.

$18 Million Offer Made On ABP Slaughter Plant

Omaha (AP) — American Beef Packers President Frank West apparently cleared a major hurdle Friday in his attempts to retrench his financially-ailing meat packing giant.

West said the Swift Fresh Meats Co., Chicago, has offered ABP $18 million for its ultramodern, $23 million, slaughter and breaking plant at Dumas, Tex.

John A. Copeland, Swift Fresh Meats president, said the agreement is "subject to development of a definitive contract and a number of clearances, including the (U.S.) Justice Department. In addition, the transaction will need the approval of the court where the American Beef bankruptcy suit is being heard."

Copeland said the tentative timetable calls for Swift to consummate the transaction by May 31.

ABP filed for relief and reorganization under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy act in early January. The firm listed debts totaling $121 million and assets of $131 million.

Among the estimated 8,000 creditors are livestock raisers who sold animals to ABP, and were paid with insufficient funds checks. Those bad checks total an estimated $25 million.

ABP officials filed the limited bankruptcy petition with full intentions of continuing operations. Federal Bankruptcy Judge David Crawford of Omaha initially granted the authorization to continue production, but ABP's largest secured creditor, General Electric Credit Corp. (GECC), obtained an injunction to stop work.

ABP then negotiated with GECC, and managed to reopen its Oakland, Iowa, plant. In addition, the ABP plant at Fort Morgan, Colo., was opened for a short time on a custom slaughter basis.

Since the filing, West has been in the process of negotiating the sale of ABP assets to raise the capital needed to pay debts and resume full-scale operations on a reduced basis.

About one month ago, ABP sold its feedlot at Minatare, Neb., to Premier Corp., Fowlerville, Mich. The sale price was near $9 million.

Negotiations are also underway to sell Roberts Dairy of Omaha. ABP owns 96% of the stock in Roberts, and the sale of the dairy to two Omaha businessmen for about $2.5 million is expected to be formally announced within the next few weeks.

The negotiations in the Roberts sale are moving smoothly, officials of both sides say.

However, the Dumas plant, the largest of its kind in the world, is ABP's biggest and newest asset, and the proceeds from the sale will go a long way in satisfying creditors and Judge Crawford.

The announcement of the sale was made just five days before West and other ABP officials are to appear before Crawford to present a plan to put ABP back on financial grounds that are solid enough to resume full production.

When operated at full capacity, the Dumas plant can handle the slaughter of 10,000 head of cattle per week, and employs about 800 workers.

Swift Fresh Meats is the largest division of Swift and Co. of Chicago, which is in turn a subsidiary of Esmark, Inc., with diversified interests throughout the food industry.

Esmark is a holding company with major interests in foods, chemicals, industrial products, energy, financial services and energy production. In addition to Swift, Esmark owns Estech, Inc., Vickers Energy Corp., and GSI, Inc.

Accounting Procedures Argued At NW Bell Rate Hike Hearings

Central City (AP) — A two-day Nebraska Public Service Commission (PSC) public hearing on a rate increase request by Northwestern Bell Telephone Co., wound up here Friday afternoon with both sides arguing the technicalities of accounting procedures.

Bell officials are asking for a hike that would increase their rate of return on investment to 10.5 per cent. The company currently claims an 8.5 per cent rate of return.

Such an increase would mean a boost of $16 million in annual intrastate revenues.

During Thursday's hearings, Dr. Charles E. Olson, an economic consultant hired by the PSC, said Bell is justified in asking for an increase, but recommended a boost to a nine per cent rate of return.

Bell produced a New York City investment banker to counter Olson's testimony. Bell officials made their formal presentations late last month during a three-day PSC hearing in Omaha.

Commissioner James Munnely of Omaha, who is conducting the hearings, took time Friday to clarify the commission's position in hiring two professional witnesses to appear in the hearings.

It is the first time witnesses have appeared on behalf of the commission, and Munnely said they were hired to seek further information which may not have been supplied by Bell.

George J. Jonaitis, a certified public accountant from Omaha, testified on behalf of the commission Friday.

During the Omaha hearings, Frank J. Landis, a Northwest Bell statistician, presented his computations for determining the company's working capital — the figure used by the commission in determining a fair rate of return.

Jonaitis took issue with Landis' presentation, and gave his own, amended version of what he determined should be capital used in deciding the rate base.

Jonaitis said operating plants under construction should not be included, as Landis had in his presentation.

"It would be unfair to charge current subscribers for items not in service presently," Jonaitis said. "That is, to pay for equipment from which they do not yet receive any benefits, and they never receive any benefits if they should cease being a subscriber before these items are placed in service."

Disallowing this inclusion in the company's rate base would yield a net reduction of $16,970,900, Jonaitis said in written testimony.

Jonaitis also challenged the company's inclusion of a "working capital allowance" in determining the rate base.

"At no time during the test year was there an excess of current assets over current liabilities," Jonaitis said.

Two Killed In Separate Accidents

By The Associated Press

A motorcycle accident near McCook killed a man late Thursday night and a one-car accident took the life of an Omaha woman early Friday.

The deaths raised Nebraska's 1975 traffic fatality toll to 77, compared with 76 at this time last year.

The State Patrol said Gary R. Clapp, 27, of Culbertson was killed when his motorcycle apparently went out of control and into a ditch, where it hit an embankment.

The accident happened on a county road about two miles south of McCook.

The Douglas County sheriff's office said Carla Leonard, 24, of Omaha died when a car went off Military Avenue at about 80th Street just northwest of Omaha. She was thrown from the vehicle.

Officers said the driver, Arnold Brooks, 28, of Omaha suffered minor injuries but declined treatment.

Hospitalized in fair condition were two other passengers, identified as Thomas Morrissey, 26, and Carol Blyth, both of Omaha. Deputies said the westbound car went off the road, flipped on a slope and struck a tree.

The victim was identified as

Dwayne P. Barnes, 20, Omaha.

Investigators said the accident occurred as Barnes was walking in the left lane of I-29 and was struck in the rear by a small car, then knocked into the path of a truck.

Omahan Killed In Kansas City

Kansas City (AP) — A Nebraska man was killed early Friday when he was struck by a small foreign car in north Kansas City, police reported.

The victim was identified as

NFO Ground Beef, Cheese Sell Out

The direct farmer-to-consumer sale of ground beef and cheddar cheese by the National Farmers Organization ran out of products to sell in just 20 minutes Friday morning in Lincoln.

The farmers sold 4,400 pounds of ground beef at 90.0 cents a pound and 1-600 pounds of cheddar cheese for $1.25 a pound.

Some customers carried away $25 worth of merchandise, claiming the quality was better than available in stores.

One homemaker, Brigitte Frank of 522 Indian Road, said she was there "to see to it the farmer gets a fair profit."

NFO officials say the sale was so successful they will try to set up another sale, perhaps within a week.

The organization has operated such sales from trucks in 32 states on an irregular basis for several weeks.

Dr. Duane Acker

Ag Vice Chancellor To Head Kansas State

Dr. Duane Acker, vice chancellor of the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, resigned Friday to become president of Kansas State University.

Acker came to Nebraska just a year ago to take over the newly established institute, which is the successor to the old College of Agriculture.

Farm leaders and university officials expressed dismay at the impending departure of the popular Acker, who had appeared at many farm-related events as a speaker.

John Klosterman of David City, who was a leader in the effort to establish the institute and a member of the search committee that selected Acker for the new job, said, "I feel his leaving is an indication of the lack of support the University is getting from the governor and the Legislature."

Klosterman said he anticipated an early reconvening of the search committee. "We are familiar with all the candidates we had before, so I anticipate that it would be possible to find a new man in a relatively short time," he said.

Dr. Acker issued a statement saying, "The opportunity came sooner than I would have preferred, but it is an excellent one and one at an institution with similar missions and heritage."

Acker described the NU institute as "well on its way and working effectively."

"Because of the development of the institute to date, and its role as an integral part of the university, I am confident that the vice chancellorship in agriculture and natural resources will be attractive to outstanding individuals," he added.

D. B. Varner, NU president, said, "It is obviously a severe jolt to the university and its program developing and strengthening agricultural programs for the state."

"He has done a superb job in my opinion. We consider his loss a very great loss to the state and to the university," Varner added.

Dr. James H. Zumbeke, chancellor of UNL, said the appointment didn't surprise him. "I had expected Duane Acker to move into a chancellorship or presidency sooner or later because I had recognized all the qualities of leadership personality, and energy that such a job requires."

"Kansas State made an excellent choice not only in Duane Acker but also in his wife who is one of the most charming persons I have met in a long time. Together they will do a great job for higher education in the state of Kansas."

Youth Saves Girl, Puts Out Fire In Clothing

Grand Island (AP) — The quick thinking and rapid feet of a Grand Island youth are being credited with saving the life of a Grand Island girl.

The incident occurred Wednesday night, as Manuel T. Aguilar was burning trash in his backyard.

Aguilar's daughter, Lori, 10, got too close to the flames, and her clothing caught fire.

The girl's vest just went up in flames, said Mrs. Aguilar, "she was so terrified she just took off running."

David Richardson, 11, son of Mrs. Jenny Richardson, was nearby with a friend, and saw Lori running around.

When David saw the young girl running, he reacted immediately by giving chase.

"He tripped her, and rolled her over and over in the dirt, and smothered the fire," Mrs. Aguilar said.

Lori suffered second and third-degree burns, and will be home in bed for sometime because she won't be able to put on any clothes, her mother said.

Lori's hair, eyebrows and eyelashes were singed, and she suffered severe burns on one leg and the lower portion of her body.

"It could have been much worse than it is if he (David) hadn't caught her, and put out the fire," said the grateful mother.

Mrs. Aguilar and doctors agree that Lori might not be alive today if David had not acted so quickly and positively.

Varner Chosen Arbor Day Speaker

Nebraska City — University of Nebraska President D. B. Varner will be the featured speaker at the Arbor Day ceremonies to be held at 3 15 p.m. Sunday, April 27, at Arbor Lodge. The national awards program will be held the night of April 26 at Steinhart Lodge. Other events planned the following day are a fly-in breakfast at Grandman Airport, a 11 30 a.m. luncheon at the Elks Club, and a 1:45 p.m. parade on Central Avenue. Morton Porter, chairman of the Arbor Day program, will serve as master of ceremonies.

City Manager Issue Squeezes Through

Valentine — A count of absentee votes has reversed the outcome of the city manager proposal before voters here this week. Originally the plan failed by three votes, 329 against, compared to 326 in favor. The city clerk's office said the counting of the 16 mail and disabled ballots resulted in 11 votes for and five against the issue. Thus the proposal drew 337 favorable votes and 334 against. This will mean a return to the city manager form of government for Valentine sometime after next spring. The town was under the plan for about eight years during the 1960s.

UNL Extension Chief Stepping Down

Dr. John L. Adams, director of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension service, has announced he is stepping down due to health reasons. Adams, who has headed the Extension service since 1965, will be assigned to a new faculty position within the university's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources. His decision to relinquish his duties as director was prompted by an allergy-type skin disease which will require some corrective plastic surgery and a period of recuperation, he said.

Livestock Buyer Reinstated

Washington — Charles E. Gleason, operator of Gleason Sheep Co. of Grand Island, Neb., has been reinstated as a registered livestock dealer under the Packers and Stockyards Act, the U.S. Department of Agriculture said. Gleason purchases livestock in Nebraska, South Dakota and Wyoming. His registration was suspended in January, 1971, for violating financial and bonding requirements of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

Rademacher Named KSC Vice President

Kearney (UPI) — Earl Rademacher, acting vice president for administration and planning at Kearney State College, Friday was formally elevated to full vice president, effective April 15. Rademacher has been acting vice president since the resignation of Dr. Gary Olson. The new vice president came to Kearney State in 1960 as assistant to the registrar.

Demo Women To Hear Mrs. Miller

Omaha (UPI) — Mrs. Jenilee Miller, first vice president of the south central region of the National Federation of Democratic Women, will be the featured speaker April 20 during the first state convention of the Nebraska Federation of Democratic Women. Mrs. Miller of Newtown, Kan., is scheduled to speak at the federation dinner in Omaha.

David City Homemaker Gets 4-H Alumni Award

Mrs. John C. (Beth) Klosterman, David City homemaker and 4-H club leader, has been named one of eight national 4-H alumni winners for 1975.

The announcement was made by W. M. Antes, state 4-H leader at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, and Kenneth Anderson, associate director of the National 4-H Service Committee, Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. Klosterman, who did most of her seven years of 4-H club work in Butler County, will receive an expense-paid trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago this fall. She also will receive a gold key award from the Olin Corp., Little Rock, Ark., national donor for the alumni program. Over the past 23 years, the university alumni award has gone to only 184 persons from throughout the U.S.

Mrs. Klosterman is president of the NU Alumni Association, the first woman to hold this post since 1925. She also is a member of the board of directors of the University Foundation, the first woman to hold this office. She is a member of the advisory board to NU President D. B. Varner, and helped organize a rural health seminar and committee at the NU Medical Center in Omaha.

Mrs. Klosterman said 4-H is the greatest influence in her life after her family and church.

Mrs. Klosterman and her husband, a farmer-feeder, have three children, 13-year-old twins Anna and Margaret, and Jac, 11, all of whom are in 4-H work.

Lancaster Manor Patients To Pay Less Next Year

Lancaster Manor's daily patient costs will probably go down next fiscal year, but the savings will be picked up by other tax-supported agencies.

Lancaster Manor has been paying all costs for a power plant which supplies power not only to it but to half a dozen other agencies located in buildings near by.

About 20% of the produced power is consumed by other agencies, according to a recent analysis by Manor personnel.

This 20% is currently reflected in the daily resident cost, which in February was $26.14.

An accounting system, which will separate the power plant costs and will make other agencies responsible for paying their share of power expenses, is now being developed, according to Manor Director Jerry Gibson.

Those agencies, all supported primarily through local, state or federal tax dollars, include a portion of the County Welfare Department, Lincoln Child Care Center, Lincoln Action Program, and LOMR, (all located in Trabant Hall), Lancaster Mental Health Clinic Day Care Center, 2145 So. 10th, and the Youth Service Center, 2201 So. 11th.

The actual savings to Lancaster Manor will not be known until the plan gains County Board approval and is put into effect next fiscal year, Manor accountant Pat Snyder said.

During the Omaha hearings, Frank J. Landis, a Northwest Bell statistician, presented his computations for determining the company's working capital — the figure used by the commission in determining a fair rate of return.

Jonaitis took issue with Landis' presentation, and gave his own, amended version of what he determined should be capital used in deciding the rate base.

Jonaitis said operating plants under construction should not be included, as Landis had in his presentation.

"It would be unfair to charge current subscribers for items not in service presently," Jonaitis said. "That is, to pay for equipment from which they do not yet receive any benefits, and they never receive any benefits if they should cease being a subscriber before these items are placed in service."

Disallowing this inclusion in the company's rate base would yield a net reduction of $16,970,900, Jonaitis said in written testimony.

Jonaitis also challenged the company's inclusion of a "working capital allowance" in determining the rate base.

"At no time during the test year was there an excess of current assets over current liabilities," Jonaitis said.

Two Killed In Separate Accidents

By The Associated Press
A motorcycle accident near McCook killed a man late Thursday night and a one-car accident took the life of an Omaha woman early Friday.

The deaths raised Nebraska's 1975 traffic fatality toll to 77, compared with 76 at this time last year.

The State Patrol said Gary R. Clapp, 27, of Culbertson was killed when his motorcycle apparently went out of control and into a ditch, where it hit an embankment.

The accident happened on a county road about two miles south of McCook.

The Douglas County sheriff's office said Carla Leonard, 24, of Omaha died when a car went off Military Avenue at about 80th Street just northwest of Omaha. She was thrown from the vehicle.

Officers said the driver, Arnold Brooks, 28, of Omaha suffered minor injuries but declined treatment.

Hospitalized in fair condition were two other passengers, identified as Thomas Morrissey, 26, and Carol Blyth, both of Omaha. Deputies said the westbound car went off the road, flipped on a slope and struck a tree.

Dwayne P. Barnes, 20, Omaha, investigated said the accident occurred as Barnes was walking in the left lane of I-29 and was struck in the rear by a small car, then knocked into the path of a truck.

NFO Ground Beef, Cheese Sell Out

The direct farmer-to-consumer sale of ground beef and cheddar cheese by the National Farmers Organization ran out of products to sell in just 20 minutes Friday morning in Lincoln.

The farmers sold 4,400 pounds of ground beef at 90.0 cents a pound and 1, 600 pounds of cheddar cheese for $1.25 a pound.

Some customers carried away $25 worth of merchandise, claiming the quality was better than available in stores.

One homemaker, Brigitte Frank of 522 Indian Road, said she was there "to see to it the farmer gets a fair profit."

NFO officials say the sale was so successful they will try to set up another sale, perhaps within a week.

The organization has operated such sales from trucks in 32 states on an irregular basis for several weeks.

UP RR Freight Derails

By The Associated Press

The Union Pacific Railroad said 28 cars of an eastbound freight train were derailed in the town of Silver Creek early Friday.

The derailment blocked mainline tracks and a branch line was being used to route traffic.

A spokesman said the freight was en route from North Platte to Omaha.

There were no injuries and the cause of the derailment has not been determined.

The spokesman said trains were being routed on a branch line from Central City through Stromsburg, Osceola, Valparaiso and Valley to Omaha.

The derailment followed by one day another freight train derailment near Seward.

A broken coupler on an eastbound Burlington Northern freight was blamed for the derailment of one car Thursday on the west edge of Seward.

There were no injuries and no track damage was reported, according to William McKenzie, BN spokesman from Denver.

He said the train was bound for Lincoln when the derailment occurred. The engineer regrouped his train and continued the run, leaving the derailed car behind, McKenzie said.

Dr. Duane Acker

Ag Vice Chancellor To Head Kansas State

Dr. Duane Acker, vice chancellor of the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, resigned Friday to become president of Kansas State University.

Acker came to Nebraska just a year ago to take over the newly established institute, which is the successor to the old College of Agriculture.

Farm leaders and university officials expressed dismay at the impending departure of the popular Acker, who had appeared at many farm-related events as a speaker.

John Klosterman of David City, who was a leader in the effort to establish the institute and a member of the search committee that selected Acker for the new job, said, "I feel his leaving is an indication of the lack of support the University is getting from the governor and the Legislature."

Klosterman said he anticipated an early reconvening of the search committee. "We are familiar with all the candidates we had before, so I anticipate that it would be possible to find a new man in a relatively short time," he said.

Dr. Acker issued a statement saying, "The opportunity came sooner than I would have preferred, but it is an excellent one and one at an institution with similar missions and heritage."

Acker described the NU institute as "well on its way and working effectively."

"Because of the development of the institute to date, and its role as an integral part of the university, I am confident that the vice chancellorship in agriculture and natural resources will be attractive to outstanding individuals," he added.

D. B. Varner, NU president, said, "It is obviously a severe jolt to the university and its program developing and strengthening agricultural programs for the state."

"He has done a superb job in my opinion. We consider his loss a very great loss to the state and to the university," Varner added.

Dr. James H. Zumbege, chancellor of UNL, said the appointment didn't surprise him. "I had expected Duane Acker to move into a chancellorship or presidency sooner or later because I had recognized all the qualities of leadership personality, and energy that such a job requires."

"Kansas State made an excellent choice not only in Duane Acker but also in his wife who is one of the most charming persons I have met in a long time. Together they will do a great job for higher education in the state of Kansas."

Youth Saves Girl, Puts Out Fire In Clothing

Grand Island (AP) — The quick thinking and rapid feet of a Grand Island youth are being credited with saving the life of a Grand Island girl.

Aguilar's daughter, Lori, 10, got too close to the flames, and her clothing caught fire.

The girl's vest just went up in flames, said Mrs. Aguilar, "she was so terrified she just took off running."

David Richardson, 11, son of Mrs. Jenny Richardson, was nearby with a friend, and saw Lori running around.

When David saw the young girl running, he reacted immediately by giving chase.

"He tripped her, and rolled her over and over in the dirt, and smothered the fire," Mrs. Aguilar said.

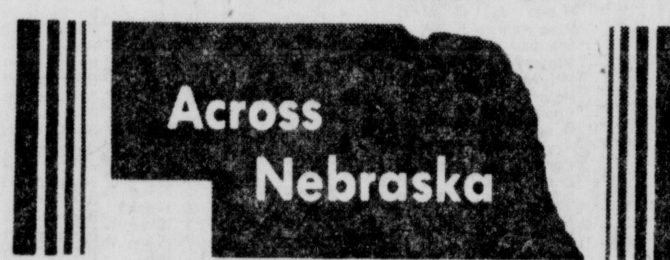

Lori suffered second and third-degree burns, and will be home in bed for some time because she won't be able to put on any clothes, her mother said.

Lori's hair, eyebrows and eyelashes were singed, and she suffered severe burns on one leg and the lower portion of her body.

"It could have been much worse than it is if he (David) hadn't caught her, and put out the fire," said the grateful mother.

Mrs. Aguilar and doctors agree that Lori might not be alive today if David had not acted so quickly and positively.

Varner Chosen Arbor Day Speaker

Nebraska City — University of Nebraska President D. B. Varner will be the featured speaker at the Arbor Day ceremonies to be held at 3:15 p.m. Sunday, April 27, at Arbor Lodge. The national awards program will be held the night of April 26 at Steinhart Lodge. Other events planned the following day are a fly-in breakfast at Grundman Airport, a 11:30 a.m. luncheon at the Elks Club, and a 1:45 p.m. parade on Central Avenue. Morton Porter, chairman of the Arbor Day program, will serve as master of ceremonies.

City Manager Issue Squeezes Through

Valentine — A count of absentee votes has reversed the outcome of the city manager proposal before voters here this week. Originally the plan failed by three votes, 329 against, compared to 326 in favor. The city clerk's office said the counting of the 16 mail and disabled ballots resulted in 11 votes for and five against the issue. Thus the proposal drew 337 favorable votes and 334 against. This will mean a return to the city manager form of government for Valentine sometime after next spring. The town was under the plan for about eight years during the 1960s.

UNL Extension Chief Stepping Down

Dr. John L. Adams, director of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension service, has announced he is stepping down due to health reasons. Adams, who has headed the Extension service since 1965, will be assigned to a new faculty position within the university's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources. His decision to relinquish his duties as director was prompted by an allergy-type skin disease which will require some corrective plastic surgery and a period of recuperation, he said.

Livestock Buyer Reinstated

Washington — Charles E. Gleason, operator of Gleason Sheep Co. of Grand Island, Neb., has been reinstated as a registered livestock dealer under the Packers and Stockyards Act, the U.S. Department of Agriculture said. Gleason purchases livestock in Nebraska, South Dakota and Wyoming. His registration was suspended in January, 1971, for violating financial and bonding requirements of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

Rademacher Named KSC Vice President

Kearney (UPI) — Earl Rademacher, acting vice president for administration and planning at Kearney State College, Friday was formally elevated to full vice president, effective April 15. Rademacher has been acting vice president since the resignation of Dr. Gary Olson. The new vice president came to Kearney State in 1960 as assistant to the registrar.

Demo Women To Hear Mrs. Miller

Omaha (UPI) — Mrs. Jenilee Miller, first vice president of the south central region of the National Federation of Democratic Women, will be the featured speaker April 20 during the first state convention of the Nebraska Federation of Democratic Women. Mrs. Miller of Newtown, Kan., is scheduled to speak at the federation dinner in Omaha.

David City Homemaker Gets 4-H Alumni Award

Mrs. John C. (Beth) Klosterman, David City homemaker and 4-H club leader, has been named one of eight national 4-H alumni winners for 1975.

The announcement was made by W. M. Antes, state 4-H leader at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, and Kenneth Anderson, associate director of the National 4-H Service Committee, Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. Klosterman, who did most of her seven years of 4-H club work in Butler County, will receive an expense-paid trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago this fall. She also will receive a gold key award from the Olden Corp., Little Rock, Ark., national donor for the alumni program. Over the past 23 years, the university alumni award has gone to only 184 persons from throughout the U.S.

Mrs. Klosterman is president of the NU Alumni Association, the first woman to hold this post since 1925. She also is a member of the board of directors of the University Foundation, the first woman to hold this office. She is a member of the advisory board to NU President D. B. Varner, and helped organize a rural health seminar and committee at the NU Medical Center in Omaha.

Mrs. Klosterman said 4-H is the greatest influence in her life after her family and church.

Mrs. Klosterman and her husband, a farmer-feeder, have three children, 13-year-old twins Anna and Margaret, and Jac, 11, all of whom are in 4-H work.

Lancaster Manor Patients To Pay Less Next Year

Lancaster Manor's daily patient costs will probably go down next fiscal year, but the savings will be picked up by other tax-supported agencies.

Lancaster Manor has been paying all costs for a power plant which supplies power not only to it but to half a dozen other agencies located in buildings near by.

About 20% of the produced power is consumed by other agencies, according to a recent analysis by Manor personnel.

This 20% is currently reflected in the daily resident cost, which in February was $26.14.

An accounting system, which will separate the power plant costs and will make other agencies responsible for paying their share of power expenses, is now being developed, according to Manor Director Jerry Gibson.

Those agencies, all supported primarily through local, state or federal tax dollars, include a portion of the County Welfare Department, Lincoln Child Care Center, Lincoln Action Program, and LOMR, (all located in Trabant Hall), Lancaster Mental Health Clinic Day Care Center, 2145 So. 10th, and the Youth Service Center, 2201 So. 11th.

The actual savings to Lancaster Manor will not be known until the plan gains County Board approval and is put into effect next fiscal year, Manor accountant Pat Snyder said.

Nicklaus 5 Strokes Up! Masters Over?

THE LINCOLN STAR

Sports

Saturday, April 12, 1975

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — The Masters ended for Lee Elder Friday, but he had lots of company. It was over for just about everyone else, too, except Jack Nicklaus.

A five-under-par 67 left Nicklaus with an all but unbeatable five-stroke lead after two rounds, and except for one man, just about everyone figured it was over.

The one man was Jack Nicklaus himself.

"I've been at Augusta many times, and I've seen many strange things happen," Nicklaus said. "I've had five-shot leads here before and lost them—and I've made up five shots."

It would take an awful lot of persuading for Nicklaus to convince anybody he's in danger of blowing this one, though.

He strung six birdies in a 10-hole stretch midway through his round. His five-shot bulge matched the tournament record. His 135 total for 36 holes, nine-under par, was two strokes off his own record, set 10 years ago.

Nicklaus is on the verge of his fifth Masters title. That would be a record. He's closing in on his 15th career major championship to extend his own record. And he's halfway to his third successive win on the tour this year. That is not a record, but the way Nicklaus is playing these days, who's to say when it will stop?

"The last couple of months, I'm probably playing better than I ever have in my life," he said.

In two days, Nicklaus has hit 35 of 36 greens in regulation. He finally missed one at No. 18 Friday when he pulled a four-iron second shot left of the green on the 420-yard hole and made a bogey, his first of the tournament.

By that time, though, it hardly mattered.

Jack made routine pars the first five holes.

Just as he completed the fifth, Tom Weiskopf—who was to finish the day six shots behind—observed that for Nicklaus, the key to the rolling Augusta National course was the same as for him, "the par five holes."

"That's not to say that he can't make some birdies on other holes," Weiskopf quickly added, "because he's a great player."

It happened exactly that way. Nicklaus hit a six-iron to five feet and birdied the 190-yard sixth. He hit an eight-iron approach to seven feet and birdied the 365-yard seventh.

Now the Golden Bear was in the lead, and soon it was to be a mountain of a lead.

Three routine pars followed before Nicklaus moved to the treacherous Amen Corner where so many Masters have been decided before, where so many before him had seen their chances drown in the waters of Rae's creek.

He hit a six-iron second shot to 28 feet at the 445-yard 11th, and made the putt for a birdie. He birdied the 155-yard 12th, hitting a seven-iron to seven feet. He got home in two at the 475-yard 13th and two-putted for another birdie.

Billy Casper was to observe that those holes "scare you to death."

J.C. Snead remembers them from two years ago when his uncle Sam had warned him, "if you come to the 12th with a chance to win the tournament, take one more club than you think you need."

He listened to his caddy instead of listening to Sam Snead, did not take enough club, hit it in the water, and lost to Tommy Aaron by a stroke.

Byron Nelson won this tournament for the first time in 1937 when he made up six shots on Ralph Guldahl on the Amen Corner stretch to overtake him.

But for Nicklaus, those holes just about clinched things, and veteran students of Masters history were hard-pressed to remember the last time a tournament had been won, rather than lost, on that stretch.

The national television "battle for second place" should be a good one.

There was a three-way tie for second, at 140, among Arnold Palmer, like Nicklaus, a four-time Masters champion albeit the last time in 1964, Casper, the 1970 champion, and 25-year-old Tom Watson, playing here for the first time as a pro.

Palmer's 71 Friday included some of his best chipping in recent years, allowing him to one-putt eight times. Watson had a 70 featured by an eagle three at the 13th where he bashed a three-iron from 200 yards to within three feet of the hole. Casper birdied the last two holes for his second successive 70.

Six players, headed by Lee Trevino and Tom Weiskopf, were at 141. The others were Bobby Nichols, the first round leader who skidded to a 74 Friday, J.C. Snead, Homero Blancas and Pat Fitzsim.

Jack Nicklaus winces in pain as he misses a birdie putt in the second round of the Masters in Augusta. He went on to par the hole and take a five-shot lead.

Horton, Colbert Spoil Hunter's Yankee Debut

By The Associated Press

Willie Horton and Nate Colbert spoiled Catfish Hunter's much-heralded New York debut Friday, blasting home runs to power the Detroit Tigers past the Yankees 5-3.

Hunter, picked up by the Yanks as a free agent for a cool $3.75 million over the winter, started slowly before a relatively disappointing crowd of 26,212 at Shea Stadium by yielding a two-

John Hiller preserved the Detroit victory when he replaced Lolich in the seventh with the bases loaded and none out. Hiller stuck out Bonds and then got Oliver to ground into an inning-ending double play.

In other American League day games, Milwaukee beat Cleveland 6-2 and Boston outlasted Baltimore 6-5 in 12 innings.

In the National League, Pittsburgh edged New York 4-3, Chicago shaded Montreal 2-1 and Atlanta defeated San Francisco 4-2.

Hank Aaron made his Milwaukee homecoming a success with his first American League hit and run batted in before a record Brewers' crowd of 48,160. Pedro Garcia contributed a two-run double and Johnny Briggs belted a home run for Milwaukee.

Carl Yastrzemski's 12th-inning home run off Doyle Alexander gave Boston its victory. Paul Blair had his second straight three-hit game for the Orioles.

The Pirates rallied for all of their runs in the ninth to beat the Mets. Manny Sanguillen singled home the first run, Rene Stennett singled home the second two and Richie Hebner got the game-winner with another single.

Rick Monday raced all the way home from second on a sacrifice fly in the eighth to give the Cubs their decisive run. Montreal right fielder Gary Carter caught the long drive off the bat of Joe Lacob but fell down, allowing Monday to reach home.

Darrell Evans broke a 2-2 tie with a two-run homer off Mike Caldwell in the eighth to give Atlanta its margin of victory.

Knicks, Rockets In Last Game

By The Associated Press

The New York Knicks know that if they just show up for their game with the Houston Rockets Saturday, they might not show up for any more National Basketball Association playoff games.

And if the Seattle SuperSonics play only from the heart against the Detroit Pistons Saturday night, they could be finished for the year, too.

The New York-Houston and the Detroit at Seattle games will be the final ones in best-of-three series. The winner of the New York-Houston series will meet Boston in a best-of-seven series, while the victory between Detroit and Seattle will open the best-of-seven play against Golden State.

In another playoff game Saturday night, the Washington Bullets are at Buffalo, with the Braves leading that best-of-seven set 1-0.

"The other night in Houston I guess we thought all we had to do was show up," said New York center John Givanni of the Knicks' 99-84 loss to the Rockets last Tuesday night. "I doubt we'll feel that way Saturday. We

The Knicks came back to even the series in New York Thursday, building a big lead and winning 106-96.

"When we don't shoot well and then turn the ball over, we don't have a lot going for us," said Houston Coach John Egan. Seattle beat Detroit 90-77 in their series opener, but then lost to the Pistons 122-106 Thursday night.

"They didn't do anything different," said Seattle Coach Bill Russell after the second-game loss. "But we did. We didn't execute. It wasn't a lack of intensity on our part. But you can't play with your heart—you've got to play with your head. And we didn't."

Buffalo was confident after winning its series opener against Washington 113-102 on the road.

"This team can play," said Buffalo Coach Jack Ramsay. "I don't think location is a factor. This is the best team I've ever coached."

"Saturday's going to be the key game," said the Braves' Garfield Heard. "I know they're coming out firing."

Jockey Matheny Starts Riding Late

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Grand Island — Terry Matheny doesn't look at his late start as a jockey with any disdain.

"Sure, it's a little handicap, but all it really means is that I've had to learn a lot of stuff in a hurry," said the 27-year-old rider who is making his first appearance in Nebraska by riding here at Fonner Park. "I started galloping horses around Lawton (Okla.) when I was 23, which is kind of late for a jockey."

Matheny, who lived on a farm through his early years near Ada, Okla., moved with his family to Joplin, Mo. where he was graduated from high school in 1965. He spent a couple of years attending business school at Missouri Southern State in Joplin, before serving a tour of duty with the Army.

But his rise in the jockey colony has been most impressive.

In 1973, he finished second to Mike Hidingar at the LaMesa Park meeting, by just one victory, 49-48. At last year's LaMesa meet, he held a slim lead over Hidingar before bypassing the final week at Raton, N.M. to ride at Albuquerque.

Hidingar rallied to tie Matheny, 61-all, leaving Matheny without an outright jockey title.

He has also ridden in bush tracks in the Lawton and Enid, Okla., areas as well as Santa Fe. But he notes the major differences between riding at Fonner, a 5/16ths mile oval, and the mile Southwest tracks.

"It's different riding here in the bullrings and I've had a heck of time adjusting to it," he said. "Everything is so quick here that I'm still having trouble. It's such a different style here with all the riders hustle, hustle all the time to get the lead."

"At the other tracks, like LaMesa, riders would, of course, like to get out as soon as possible from the gate, but then they would work more on getting position and then really start to run the last 1/16ths," he continued.

While older riders have offered suggestions to Matheny, he said he has tried to pattern his riding style after John Lively, who has won the riding championships the past four years at Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha.

Matheny arrived in Nebraska with trainer W. A. Gilett Jr., who has a 12-horse stable at Fonner. Among his runners are Roul To Win, Kid Billy, War Princess and Ramal.

While Matheny said he would definitely travel with Gilett to the outstate Nebraska circuit—Lincoln, Columbus and Atokad, he was uncertain about competing at Ak-Sar-Ben, which opens its 56-day meeting on April 29.

"It's tough getting stalls up there in Omaha so I really don't know what I'll do," he said.

Although Matheny is pleased with his success as a jockey, he said he was not certain how long he would ride. He added that he would prefer to remain in horse racing after his jockey days end, perhaps, as a trainer.

Matheny, nevertheless, is having trouble acclimating to the Nebraska weather.

"I'd never been in the state before and it was real bad on me at the beginning," he said. "Everybody had told me how bad the weather was, but I didn't think it would be so bad. I'm still not adjusting to it."

He is, however, adjusting to riding in Nebraska and that's the most important thing.

Comeback Prophecy Coming True For NU

By KEN HAMBLETON

Star Sports Writer
Whoever called 1975 the "year of the comeback" for the Nebraska baseball team must have had a crystal ball.

For the fourth and fifth straight times, the Huskers rallied from three and five-run deficits to down Missouri, 7-4 and 8-6 to run its Big Eight record to 5-0.

Hitting was the answer once again as the Huskers rapped 13

hits in the opener and six in the nightcap.

Designated hitter Steve McManaman hit a pair of doubles and Larry Winum broke his drought at the plate with a double and a single, to pace the Huskers.

In the first game, Missouri took a 2-0 lead in the first inning on a two-run home run by Tom Ellis.

The Huskers roared back in the bottom of the second though, parlaying three singles and a double by McManaman for three runs.

NU took the lead in the fourth inning when Norm Glismann singled, and then scored on a double by catcher Doak Fowler. But the Tigers tied the game 4-4 in the fifth inning.

Then McManaman hit his second double of the day to lead off the bottom of the sixth followed by a single by first baseman Winum. McManaman scored on a sacrifice bunt by Haas. Dick Anderson and Gary Healey added singles for the Huskers scoring Winum and Anderson to give NU the win.

Boyd Batenhorst, who

In the second game, Missouri assumed a 5-0 lead in the second inning.

Mike Lally, Jim Werner, Bruce Whitesides and John Kruse singled. Then a passed ball charged to Fowler and a wild pitch by pitcher Boyd Batenhorst provided the Tigers' scores.

Fowler scored on a fielder's choice by Winum in the second and Healey tallied for NU in the third on an error by NU catcher Terry Hayes.

In the fourth inning, eight Huskers batted but only two scored as Missouri reliever Tom Lange returned three straight with the bases loaded.

Haas then rapped a line drive to left center for a triple to put Nebraska ahead, 7-6.

Haas scored the final run on the following play when Anderson singled.

Eymann, who faced only 10 batters in three innings, got the win for the Huskers, now 7-8 overall.

Nebraska hosts Missouri in a single game Saturday at 1 p.m. at the NU diamond.

Frosh Promoted After Scrimmage

By BOB OWENS

Star Sports Editor

There were no wholesale changes in team alignments at the University of Nebraska as a result of Wednesday's first full-scale scrimmage, but a couple of last season's freshmen earned promotions.

Fullback Dodie Donnell and I-back Curtis Craig advanced to the No. 2 unit for Saturday afternoon's second major scrimmage scheduled to begin at 1:45 p.m. in NU Stadium. It will be open to the public.

Coach Tom Osborne said there were no major surprises in the first scrimmage, but that some other changes have been necessitated because of the injury situation.

At linebacker, Jim Belka, who had been with the No. 1 unit, will miss Saturday's workout because of a knee strain and Vince Ferragamo is doubtful for duty at quarterback because of bruises.

Belka's spot will be taken by Cletus Piller and if Ferragamo can't work, the No. 2 unit will be directed exclusively by Randy Garcia.

Osborne mentioned No. 9 defensive left tackle Dean Gissler and No. 2 split end Bobby Thomas as having some good moments in Wednesday's workout.

Jerry Wied, who played at middle guard some late last season and started there this spring, has been switched back to a defensive tackle position as the Huskers regained the services of Willie Thornton, last year's backup to John Lee at middle guard.

Earl Everett, who has been switched from quarterback to wingback, still is hobbled by a pulled hamstring muscle which Osborne said is becoming a matter of some concern. Everett, who was expected back Friday, now won't suit up until Monday.

The new offensive line had no major changes as a result of the scrimmage. The first unit includes guards Dan Schmidt and Nick Zanetich and tackles Bob Linvenfelter and Steve Hoin.

Other players who will miss Saturday's drill include I-back Dave Gillespie, fullback Gary Higgs, split end Dave Shamblin, and wingback Darrell Walton.

Here's how they'll line up for Saturday's scrimmage (Players separated by a hyphen are sharing a place on the same team. Commas separate first, second, third and fourth teams):

Horton, Colbert Spoil Hunter's Yankee Debut

By The Associated Press

Willie Horton and Nate Colbert spoiled Catfish Hunter's much-heralded New York debut Friday, blasting home runs to power the Detroit Tigers past the Yankees 5-3.

Hunter, picked up by the Yanks as a free agent for a cool $3.75 million over the winter, started slowly before a relatively disappointing crowd of 26,212 at Shea Stadium by yielding a two-run homer to Horton in the first inning.

New York came back with three runs against Detroit starter Mickey Lolich in their half of the first on the strength of run-scoring doubles by Bobby Bonds and Bob Oliver and a throwing error by Tiger shortstop Tom Veryzer.

Hunter held the lead into the sixth, but a walk to Ron Leflore and a single by Gary Sutherland set the stage for Colbert's game-

John Hiller preserved the Detroit victory when he replaced Lolich in the seventh with the bases loaded and none out. Hiller stuck out Bonds and then got Oliver to ground into an inning-ending double play.

In other American League day games, Milwaukee beat Cleveland 6-2 and Boston outlasted Baltimore 6-5 in 12 innings.

In the National League, Pittsburgh edged New York 4-3, Chicago shaded Montreal 2-1 and Atlanta defeated San Francisco 4-2.

Hank Aaron made his Milwaukee homecoming a success with his first American League hit and run batted in before a record Brewers' crowd of 48,160. Pedro Garcia contributed a two-run double and Johnny Briggs belted a home run for Milwaukee.

Carl Yastrzemski's 12th-inning home run off Doyle Alexander gave Boston its victory. Paul Blair had his second straight three-hit game for the Orioles.

The Pirates rallied for all of their runs in the ninth to beat the Mets. Manny Sanguillen singled home the first run, Rennie Stennett singled home the second two and Richie Hebner got the game-winner with another single.

Rick Monday raced all the way home from second on a sacrifice fly in the eighth to give the Cubs their decisive run. Montreal right fielder Gary Carter caught the long drive off the bat of Joe Lacob but fell down, allowing Monday to reach home.

Darrell Evans broke a 2-2 tie with a two-run homer off Mike Caldwell in the eighth to give Atlanta its margin of victory.

Knicks, Rockets In Last Game

By The Associated Press

The New York Knicks know that if they just show up for their game with the Houston Rockets Saturday, they might not show up for any more National Basketball Association playoff games.

And if the Seattle SuperSonics play only from the heart against the Detroit Pistons Saturday night, they could be finished for the year, too.

The New York-Houston and the Detroit at Seattle games will be the final ones in best-of-three series. The winner of the New York-Houston series will meet Boston in a best-of-seven series, while the victory between Detroit and Seattle will open the best-of-seven play against Golden State.

In another playoff game Saturday night, the Washington Bullets are at Buffalo, with the Braves leading that best-of-seven set 1-0.

"The other night in Houston I guess we thought all we had to do was show up," said New York center John Gianelli of the Knicks' 99-84 loss to the Rockets last Tuesday night. "I doubt we'll feel that way Saturday. We learned our lesson the other night."

The Knicks came back to even the series in New York Thursday, building a big lead and winning 106-96.

"When we don't shoot well and then turn the ball over, we don't have a lot going for us," said Houston Coach John Egan. Seattle beat Detroit 90-77 in their series opener, but then lost to the Pistons 122-106 Thursday night.

"They didn't do anything different," said Seattle Coach Bill Russell after the second-game loss. "But we did. We didn't execute. It wasn't a lack of intensity on our part. But you can't play with your heart—you've got to play with your head. And we didn't."

Buffalo was confident after winning its series opener against Washington 113-102 on the road.

"This team can play," said Buffalo Coach Jack Ramsay. "I don't think location is a factor. This is the best team I've ever coached."

"Saturday's going to be the key game," said the Braves' Garfield Heard. "I know they're coming out firing."

Grand Island — Terry Matheny doesn't look at his late start as a jockey with any disdain.

"Sure, it's a little handicap, but all it really means is that I've had to learn a lot of stuff in a hurry," said the 27-year-old rider who is making his first appearance in Nebraska by riding here at Fanner Park. "I started galloping horses around Lawton (Okla.) when I was 23, which is kind of late for a jockey."

Matheny, who lived on a farm through his early years near Ada, Okla., moved with his family to Joplin, Mo. where he was graduated from high school in 1965. He spent a couple of years attending business school at Missouri Southern State in Joplin, before serving a tour of duty with the Army.

But his rise in the jockey colony has been most impressive.

In 1973, he finished second to Mike Hidingar at the LaMesa Park meeting, by just one victory, 49-48. At last year's LaMesa meet, he held a slim lead over Hidingar before bypassing the final week at Raton, N.M. to ride at Albuquerque.

Hidingar rallied to tie Matheny, 61-all, leaving Matheny without an outright jockey title.

He has also ridden in bush tracks in the Lawton and Enid, Okla., areas as well as Santa Fe. But he notes the major differences between riding at Fanner, a 1/8 mile oval, and the mile Southwest tracks.

"It's different riding here in the bullrings and I've had a heck of time adjusting to it," he said. "Everything is so quick here that I'm still having trouble. It's such a different style here with all the riders hustle, hustle all the time to get the lead."

"At the other tracks, like LaMesa, riders would, of course, like to get out as soon as possible from the gate, but then they would work more on getting position and then really start to run the last 1/8ths," he continued.

While older riders have offered suggestions to Matheny, he said he has tried to pattern his riding style after John Lively, who has won the riding championships the past four years at Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha.

Matheny arrived in Nebraska with trainer W. A. Gillett Jr., who has a 12-horse stable at Fanner. Among his runners are Roul To Win, Kid Billy, War Princess and Ramal.

While Matheny said he would definitely travel with Gillett to the outstate Nebraska circuit — Lincoln, Columbus and Atokad, he was uncertain about competing at Ak-Sar-Ben, which opens its 56-day meeting on April 29.

"It's tough getting stalls up there in Omaha so I really don't know what I'll do," he said.

Although Matheny is pleased with his success as a jockey, he said he was not certain how long he would ride. He added that he would prefer to remain in horse racing after his jockey days end, perhaps, as a trainer.

Matheny, nevertheless, is having trouble acclimating to the Nebraska weather.

"I'd never been in the state before and it was real bad on me at the beginning," he said. "Everybody had told me how bad the weather was, but I didn't think it would be so bad. I'm still not adjusting to it."

He is, however, adjusting to riding in Nebraska and that's the most important thing.

Doane College captured the W Club Invitational golf tournament Friday at Pioneers Park behind the shooting of Tom Koziak and B. C. Couton.

Koziak, with a round of 75, edged Jim Lund of UNO in a playoff for top medalist and Couton finished third with a 76.

Jack Nicklaus winces in pain as he misses a birdie putt in the second round of the Masters in Augusta. He went on to par the hole and take a five-shot lead.

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — The Masters ended for Lee Elder Friday, but he had lots of company. It was over for just about everyone else, too, except Jack Nicklaus.

A five-under-par 67 left Nicklaus with an all but unbeatable five-stroke lead after two rounds, and except for one man, just about everyone figured it was over.

The one man was Jack Nicklaus himself.

"I've been at Augusta many times, and I've seen many strange things happen," Nicklaus said. "I've had five-shot leads here before and lost them—and I've made up five shots."

It would take an awful lot of persuading for Nicklaus to convince anybody he's in danger of blowing this one, though.

He strung six birdies in a 10-hole stretch midway through his round. His five-shot bulge matched the tournament record. His 135 total for 36 holes, nine-under par, was two strokes off his own record, set 10 years ago.

Nicklaus is on the verge of his fifth Masters title. That would be a record. He's closing in on his 15th career major championship to extend his own record. And he's halfway to his third successive win on the tour this year. That is not a record, but the way Nicklaus is playing these days, who's to say when it will stop?

"The last couple of months, I'm probably playing better than I ever have in my life," he said.

In two days, Nicklaus has hit 35 of 36 greens in regulation. He finally missed one at No. 18 Friday when he pulled a four-iron second shot left of the green on the 420-yard hole and made a bogey, his first of the tournament.

By that time, though, it hardly mattered.

Jack made routine pars the first five holes.

Just as he completed the fifth, Tom Weiskopf—who was to finish the day six shots behind—observed that for Nicklaus, the key to the rolling Augusta National course was the same as for him, "the par five holes."

"That's not to say that he can't make some birdies on other holes," Weiskopf quickly added, "because he's a great player."

It happened exactly that way.

Nicklaus hit a six-iron to five feet and birdied the 190-yard sixth. He hit an eight-iron approach to seven feet and birdied the 365-yard seventh.

Now the Golden Bear was in the lead, and soon it was to be a mountain of a lead.

Three routine pars followed before Nicklaus moved to the treacherous Amen Corner where so many Masters have been decided before, where so many before him had seen their chances drown in the waters of Rae's creek.

He hit a six-iron second shot to 28 feet at the 445-yard 11th, and made the putt for a birdie. He birdied the 155-yard 12th, hitting a seven-iron to seven feet. He got home in two at the 475-yard 13th and two-putted for another birdie.

Billy Casper was to observe that those holes "scare you to death."

J.C. Snead remembers them from two years ago when his uncle Sam had warned him, "if you come to the 12th with a chance to win the tournament, take one more club than you think you need."

He listened to his caddy instead of listening to Sam Snead, did not take enough club, hit it in the water, and lost to Tommy Aaron by a stroke.

Byron Nelson won this tournament for the first time in 1937 when he made up six shots on Ralph Guldahl on the Amen Corner stretch to overtake him.

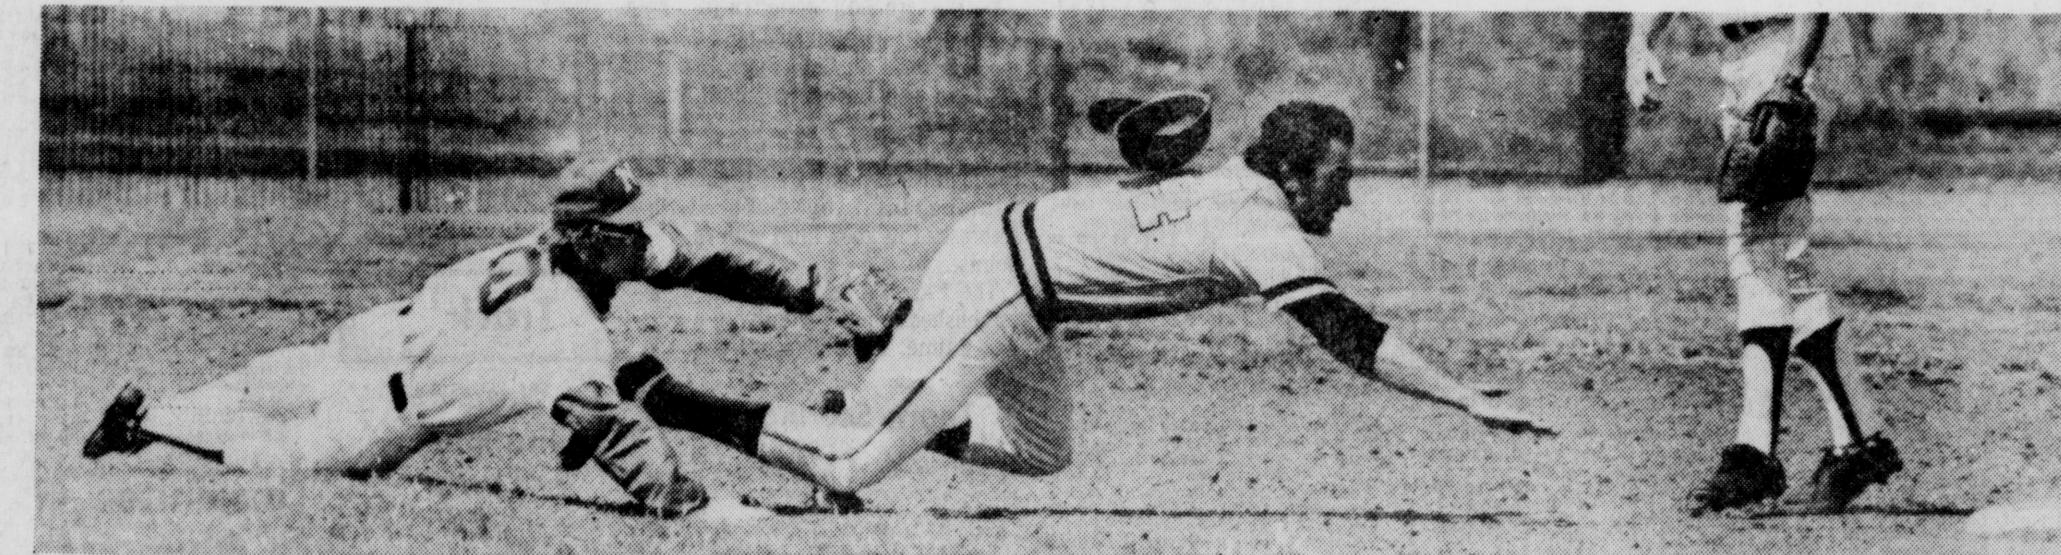

But for Nicklaus, those holes just about clinched things, and veteran students of Masters history were hard-pressed to remember the last time a tournament had been won, rather than lost, on that stretch.

The national television "battle for second place" should be a good one.

There was a three-way tie for second, at 140, among Arnold Palmer, like Nicklaus, a four-time Masters champion albeit the last time in 1964, Casper, the 1970 champion, and 25-year-old Tom Watson, playing here for the first time as a pro.

Palmer's 71 Friday included some of his best chipping in recent years, allowing him to one-putt eight times. Watson had a 70 featured by an eagle three at the 13th where he bashed a three-iron from 200 yards to within three feet of the hole. Casper birdied the last two holes for his second successive 70.

Six players, headed by Lee Trevino and Tom Weiskopf, were at 141. The others were Bobby Nichols, the first round leader who skidded to a 74 Friday, J.C. Snead, Homero Blancas and Pat Fitzsimmons.

Comeback Prophecy Coming True For NU

By KEN HAMBLETON

Star Sports Writer

Whoever called 1975 the "year of the comeback" for the Nebraska baseball team must have had a crystal ball.

For the fourth and fifth straight times, the Huskers rallied from three and five-run deficits to down Missouri, 7-4 and 8-6 to run its Big Eight record to 5-0.

Hitting was the answer once again as the Huskers rapped 13 hits in the opener and six in the nightcap.

Centerfielder Paul Haas led the way driving in six runs including a three-run triple in the second game.

Designated hitter Steve McManaman hit a pair of doubles and Larry Winum broke his drought at the plate with a double and a single, to pace the Huskers.

In the first game, Missouri took a 2-0 lead in the first inning on a two-run home run by Tom Ellis.

The Tigers stretched the lead to 3-0 in the second when John Kruse, who walked, scored on a double by Jeff Haterkamp.

The Huskers roared back in the bottom of the second though, parlaying three singles and a double by McManaman for three runs.

NU took the lead in the fourth inning when Norm Glismann singled, and then scored on a double by catcher Doak Fowler. But the Tigers tied the game 4-4 in the fifth inning.

Then McManaman hit his second double of the day to lead off the bottom of the sixth followed by a single by first baseman Winum. McManaman scored on a sacrifice bunt by Haas. Dick Anderson and Gary Healey added singles for the Huskers scoring Winum and Anderson to give NU the win. Boyd Batenhorst, who relieved Kirk Eymann in the sixth inning, was credited with the win.

In the second game, Missouri assumed a 5-0 lead in the second inning.

Mike Lally, Jim Werner, Bruce Whitesides and John Kruse singled. Then a passed ball charged to Fowler and a wild pitch by pitcher Boyd Batenhorst provided the Tigers' scores.

Fowler scored on a fielder's choice by Winum in the second and Healey tallied for NU in the third on an error by MU catcher Terry Hayes.

In the fourth inning, eight Huskers batted but only two scored as Missouri reliever Tom Lange retired three straight with the bases loaded.

Missouri boosted its lead to 6-4 in the sixth on a walk, a hit batsman and a sacrifice.

But Nebraska, appearing as though it couldn't lose, exploded

in the sixth taking advantage of three straight walks issued by Lange to load the bases.

Haas then rapped a line drive to left center for a triple to put Nebraska ahead, 7-6.

Haas scored the final run on the following play when Anderson singled.

Eymann, who faced only 10 batters in three innings, got the win for the Huskers, now 7-8 overall.

Nebraska hosts Missouri in a single game Saturday at 1 p.m. at the NU diamond.

BASEBALL

Infielder Dave Johnson, who two seasons ago set a major league record for second basemen by hitting 43 home runs, has been placed on waivers by the Atlanta Braves. Johnson wants to play baseball in Japan.

The New York Yankees elected to have five youngsters throw out the first ball prior to their home opener against Detroit, breaking the tradition of showcasing a celebrity. The youngsters were the orphaned children of Frank Walter, who was killed last January while coming to the aid of a police officer.

A youth fell five floors from a ramp at Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh Friday after the Pirates' game. He was reported in guarded condition.

Former New York Yankee Clete Boyer blasted a two-run home run to lead the Taiyo Whales to a 8-1 victory over the Yakult Swallows.

BASKETBALL

Chicago Bulls coach Dick Motta told his players to play with "more of the same" style as in the first game when the Bulls meet the Kansas City-Omaha Kings Sunday in the second game of the best-of-seven playoff series in Kansas City.

Marvin Barnes of the Spirits of St. Louis has been chosen rookie of the year by a vote of players in the ABA, the Sporting News said. Barnes edged Moses Malone of Utah by one vote.

Portland Trail Blazers executive vice president Harry Chickman says the NBA owners meeting in Las Vegas Tuesday is likely to look into Bill Walton's part in the Patty Hearst case.

Ian McKegney of the Dallas Black Hawks has been named the most valuable defenseman in the Central Hockey League in voting by its eight coaches.

The Green Bay Packers have signed 11th-round draft choice William Cooke, an offensive tackle from Massachusetts University, and free agents Nick Bastajaz, a guard-center from Simon Fraser University, linebacker Chuck Strickland of Alabama, and defensive back Dave Walker of Utah.

The Denver Broncos have signed second-round draft choice Charlie Smith, a 6-5 defensive end from North Carolina Central. The Chicago Bears signed tight end Greg Latta, the third acquisition from the NFL's Florida Blazers.

NHL-ABA ROUNDUP

Koroll Paces Chicago Win

From News Wires

NHL

Cliff Koroll's two power play goals and two goals by J. P. Bordeleau Friday helped Chicago to a 6-4 win over the Boston Bruins as the Black Hawks advanced to the quarter-finals of the National Hockey League playoffs.

In winning its first playoff series ever against Boston, Chicago jumped to a 3-0 lead early in the second period. The Bruins, Stanley Cup finalists last year, outshot Chicago, 56-19, yet could pull no closer than 3-2 in the second period.

Meanwhile, J. P. Parise took a pass from Jude Drouin at the goalmouth and scored at 11 seconds for the quickest overtime goal in Stanley Cup history Friday night as the New York Islanders ousted the New York Rangers from the playoffs 4-3.

The win by the Islanders, only in their third year of existence, sent him into the NHL quarter-final round against either Montreal or Pittsburgh. The Islanders had split the first two games of the best-of-three series to set up Friday night's deciding game.

ABA

Ron Boone scored a game-high 30 points in the Utah Stars' 132-110 victory over Denver Friday night, evening the first round ABA playoff series at 2-2.

The Stars grabbed an 18-point first quarter lead at 38-20, then fattened it to 69-42 at the half. Utah led 103-75 going into the final quarter.

Rookie Moses Malone set his second team record in two nights in blocking six shots. In game three, he broke the existing Stars' rebound mark with 32.

Game five in the series will be played Saturday night in Denver. Rookie Marvin Barnes scored 35 points, Freddie Lewis added 30 and the St. Louis Spirits withstood a late barrage by the New York Nets Friday night to take a 113-108 victory and go up 2-1 in their opening-round ABA playoff series.

Stew Johnson scored 25 points and three teammates added 24 each to lead the Memphis Sounds to a 107-93 win over the Kentucky Colonels.

The Sounds now trail 3-1 in the best-of-seven series. The next game is to be played Sunday in Louisville.

Chuck Williams, Tom Owens and George Carter had 24 apiece for Memphis, while Dan Issel led Kentucky with 26 points. Louis Dampier added 21 for the Colonels.

The Sooners added another run in the eighth on a single by Snider, a hit batsman and Stutzinger's single.

Reliever Del Ochsner was credited with the victory, which stretched ISU's season record to 10-7 and conference mark to 4-2. It was only the third loss in 31 games this season for the Sooners, and their first in four league outings.

Morning Briefing

A Sports Roundup

BASEBALL

Infielder Dave Johnson, who two seasons ago set a major league record for second basemen by hitting 43 home runs, has been placed on waivers by the Atlanta Braves. Johnson wants to play baseball in Japan.

The New York Yankees elected to have five youngsters throw out the first ball prior to their home opener against Detroit, breaking the tradition of showcasing a celebrity. The youngsters were the orphaned children of Frank Walter, who was killed last January while coming to the aid of a police officer.

A youth fell five floors from a ramp at Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh Friday after the Pirates' game. He was reported in guarded condition.

Former New York Yankee Cleve Boyer blasted a two-run home run to lead the Taiyo Whales to a 8-1 victory over the Yakult Swallows.

BASKETBALL

Chicago Bulls coach Dick Motta told his players to play with "more of the same" style as in the first game when the Bulls meet the Kansas City-Omaha Kings Sunday in the second game of the best-of-seven playoff series in Kansas City.

Marvin Barnes of the Spirits of St. Louis has been chosen rookie of the year by a vote of players in the ABA, the Sporting News said. Barnes edged Moses Malone of Utah by one vote.

Portland Trail Blazers executive vice president Harry Clickman says the NBA owners meeting in Las Vegas Tuesday is likely to look into Bill Walton's part in the Patty Hearst case.

The Midwest All-Stars, led by the second-half shooting of Indiana's Steven Green, defeated the East All-Stars, 89-79, in a first-round game of the seventh annual Aloha Basketball Classic in Honolulu.

NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy, who retires in two months, has blasted league players and coaches regarding their behavior toward officials in the playoffs, saying their actions "will not be tolerated."

HOCKEY

Ian McKegney of the Dallas Black Hawks has been named the most valuable defenseman in the Central Hockey League in voting by its eight coaches.

Attendance at International Hockey League games in the 1974-75 regular season was up 157,628 from the previous season, the league said.

FOOTBALL

The Chicago Bears have announced tentative plans to move to a new 80,000-seat stadium to be built adjacent to Arlington Park thoroughbred race track.

For the second year in a row, the student body governing board at the University of Montana has voted to withhold student money from the school's intercollegiate football program.

The Green Bay Packers have signed 11th-round draft choice William Cooke, an offensive tackle from Massachusetts University, and free agents Nick Bastajaz, a guard-center from Simon Fraser University, linebacker Chuck Strickland of Alabama, and defensive back Dave Walker of Utah.

The Denver Broncos have signed second-round draft choice Charlie Smith, a 6-5 defensive end from North Carolina Central. The Chicago Bears signed tight end Greg Latta, the third acquisition from the WFL's Florida Blazers.

Chicago Win

NHL

Cliff Koroll's two power play goals and two goals by J. P. Bordeleau Friday helped Chicago to a 6-4 win over the Boston Bruins as the Black Hawks advanced to the quarter-finals of the National Hockey League playoffs.

In winning its first playoff series ever against Boston, Chicago jumped to a 3-0 lead early in the second period. The Bruins, Stanley Cup finalists last year, outshot Chicago, 56-19, yet could pull no closer than 3-2 in the second period.

Meanwhile, J. P. Parise took a pass from Jude Drouin at the goalmouth and scored at 11 seconds for the quickest overtime goal in Stanley Cup history Friday night as the New York Rangers ousted the New York Islanders in their third year of existence, sent him into the NHL quarter-final round against either Montreal or Pittsburgh. The Islanders had split the first two games of the best-of-three series to set up Friday night's deciding game.

ABA

Ron Boone scored a game-high 30 points in the Utah Stars' 132-110 victory over Denver Friday night, evening the first round ABA playoff series at 2-2. The Stars grabbed an 18-point first quarter lead at 38-20, then fattened it to 69-42 at the half. Utah led 107-75 going into the final quarter.

Rookie Moses Malone set his second team record in two nights in blocking six shots. In game three, he broke the existing Stars' rebound mark with 32.

Game five in the series will be played Saturday night in Denver. Rookie Marvin Barnes scored 35 points, Freddie Lewis added 30 and the St. Louis Spirits withstood a late barrage by the New York Nets Friday night to take a 113-108 victory and go up 2-1 in their opening-round ABA playoff series.

Stew Johnson scored 25 points and three teammates added 24 each to lead the Memphis Sounds to a 107-93 win over the Kentucky Colonels.

The Sounds now trail 3-1 in the best-of-seven series. The next game is to be played Sunday in Louisville.

Chuck Williams, Tom Owens and George Carter had 24 apiece for Memphis, while Dan Issel led Kentucky with 26 points. Louis Dampier added 21 for the Colonels.

The Sooners added another run in the eighth on a single by Snider, a hit batsman and Stutzinger's single.

Reliever Del Ochsner was credited with the victory, which stretched ISU's season record to 10-7 and conference mark to 4-2. It was only the third loss in 31 games this season for the Sooners, and their first in four league outings.

Oklahoma scored three times in the second inning on singles by Kelly Snider and Greg Stutzinger, a walk to Terry Jolly, Mike Cunico's fielder's choice and a two-run single by Wayne Pacheco.

Bypass Could Spur Development

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The proposed West Side Bypass could spur development in west Lincoln, a consultant helping the city update the Comprehensive Plan said Friday.

Bob Teska, vice president of Barton-Aschman Associates, told members of the planning commission the expressway could provide convenient and attractive access to and from the west part of town.

For a few dollars extra, he said the city can turn an adverse impact into a positive one by designing a freeway which is visually attractive.

Developer Pace Woods Jr. suggested the bypass would deter desired residential growth because of what he termed the probable negative impact of a freeway.

Woods said the commission should consider the possible effect a freeway would have on its proposed stepped-up development for west Lincoln.

The planning commission has said Lincoln should grow radially to the west, north and south before expanding east into the Stevens Creek watershed.

That preliminary land use plan will become the basis for the new Comprehensive Plan.

The exact routings of the West Side and South Side Bypasses, as well as the routings of other proposed street widening projects, remain sketchy. The details will be incorporated into a transportation plan, still being tested by the consultants and governmental officials.

In upcoming months, the commission will delve into the nitty-gritty of transportation planning. Those decisions probably will involve several controversial issues, such as the routing of the West Side Bypass through Wilderness Park and construction of the Northeast Radial.

A number of people are opposing the taking of any parkland, located in southwest Lincoln, for a highway.

Likewise, a number of citizens convinced the City Council last year to axe the controversial Northeast Radial, which would run from northeast Lincoln downtown.

Teska may be touching off a new round of debate when he reported that a diagonal roadway running in the abandoned Northeast Radial's roadbed may be necessary to transport future Lincolinites.

Teska, said, however, such a road need not be built to freeway standards, but could be built as an arterial. He also suggested that should no diagonal be constructed, the land already purchased by the city could be used for housing.

In May the consultants will present the preliminary land use plan to the Goals and Policies Committee for that body's comments.

No IBM Plant Planned For Lincoln Site

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

International Business Machines Corp. has no present plans to build on the 800 acres it owns in Lincoln's Steven's Creek watershed, according to an IBM spokesman in Chicago.

"We have no plans... no short- or long-range plans," said the spokesman, who said he was sure the company would be willing to discuss the site with the city.

The possibility of relocating any future IBM plant was brought out as the City-County Planning Commission began the work of updating Lincoln's Comprehensive Plan.

The updated plan will recommend that Lincoln grow to the north, west and south before expanding east into the watershed, and the commission suggested that city officials ask IBM to move their site or follow specific development restraints.

"If the city wants to call us and discuss whatever plans they have, I'm sure we will be willing to talk," said the IBM spokesman.

"We've had no calls or contacts whatsoever from the city, the planning commission, the goals and policy people," said the spokesman, who has kept up on the recent IBM discussion by reading Lincoln papers.

Though the company might be willing to talk with the city, another corporation executive said his personal opinion led him to the inclination that the corporation would probably not select another site in Lincoln.

The 800 acres of industrially zoned farmland in northeast Lincoln, purchased by IBM in 1970, is one of eight land banks acquired as possible future sites for plants and laboratories.

"The land banks were acquired for potential long-range need, and right now we don't have the need," explained William Ross, a senior IBM planner in White Plains, N.Y.

Lincoln is low on the land bank development list, IBM officials said.

Police Training Director Resigns

Harris Owens, Nebraska Crime Commission director, announced Friday the resignation of Donald G. Webb, director of the Nebraska Law Enforcement Training Center at Grand Island.

Owens said Webb's resignation carried a May 2 effective date. He plans to go to work as academy systems coordinator for the Oregon Police Academy, which is run by the Oregon Board of Police Standards and Training.

Webb has been the director of the Grand Island training center since Jan. 1, 1973.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 4. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letter under the checked figures give you.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST by SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Saturday

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Cycle is such that you receive benefit of all doubts. Have factual information available. Straighten files. Be specific. You advance through unusual situation affecting professional associate. Aquarian could play significant role.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Clandestine meeting could be on agenda. Be discreet. Don't commit yourself to define actions. Many questions remain unanswered. Another Gemini is in picture — and so is a Virgo. Accent is on hospital, special institution, club or charity campaign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Friends make unusual requests, act in eccentric manner. Maintain your own balance. Make some concessions. However, refuse to risk family harmony — or security. Taurus, Scorpio and Libra individuals figure in important ways.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Avoid self-deception. See situation, persons as they are, not merely as you wish they could be. Accent is on shakeup in basic procedures, domestic and professional changes. You could gain access to privileged information.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Get down to business — outline duties, responsibilities. Capricorn, Cancer individuals could be involved. Travel plans subject to change or postponement. Check reservations, schedules. Applies especially to air travel.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Unorthodox procedures necessary where money collections enter picture. Means unusual sources are not available. Get rid of losing proposition. You have right to an accounting and a focus on future prospects.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): If you rely too heavily on structure, tradition, there could be disappointment and disillusionment. Do some analyzing — be selective. New approach is necessary, especially where legal affairs are concerned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Tread softly. Cooperate with one who taught you in past. Build for security. Deal with one who is knowledgeable about money matters, budgets and the like. Financial management may be more necessary than is evident on surface.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Reach beyond apparent limitation. Broader horizons are in picture. Gemini, Sagittarius individuals figure prominently. Affair of heart could be stimulating, worrisome and controversial. But you'll know you're alive!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You run into closed doors, red tape and various obstacles. Sense of fitness, humor become your allies. Adhere to principles. Refuse to knuckle under to compromises. If persistent — and display modicum of courage you get your way. Know it and act accordingly.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Ideas sparkle but also create dissension. Do some reviewing. Be positive about direction. You could be going one way while goal actually is in another direction. Gemini, Virgo and another Pisces figure prominently.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY June should be your most significant month of 1975. You are versatile, independent and have weight problem. Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letter under the checked figures give you.
